Round-World Fliers Land In L.A.

HUGHES ONE MINUTE LATE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Howard Hughes landed his twin-motored Lockheed plane here today almost a month to the day since he took off for New York and the start of his three-and-a-half day globe circling flight.

Hughes and his companions landed at Grand Central Air Terminal, in Glendale, at 11:01 a. m., one minute past the time set for the return of the ship to its home port.

Before landing Hughes circled the city of Los Angeles, accompanied by an American Airlines plane which had met Hughes' ship at San Bernardino, and then circled the Lockheed plane before setting the giant craft down at Glendale.

With Hughes were Ed Lund, Harry Connor and Ralph Stoddard, who accompanied him on the world flight, and Albert L. Lockwick of New York, ground manager of the flight, who accompanied the party from New York.

Thurloew Arrives Early
Lieut. T. L. Thurloew, army officer and fifth member of the world flight, arrived two hours ahead of Hughes, flying an army plane from Phoenix, Ariz.

Thurloew took off from Phoenix at 6:30 a. m., and arrived at the Glendale airport at 9 a. m. Hughes departed from Phoenix at 8:47 a. m. PST.

Thousands were at the airport to greet Hughes when he landed. Greeted by Officials

Gov. Frank P. Merriam, Mayor Frank L. Shaw, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz and other officials were on hand for formal welcoming gestures, but the landing and first exchange of greeting was something of a family matter.

In the vanguard of the welcoming committee was Robert Hughes, noted author and uncle of the flier. The two sighted each other almost at once and the shy, young flier winked at his uncle and said: "Hello, Unc."

"Great Day"
"Great day for the Hugheses," Rupert Hughes said, beaming with pride.

The great throng at the airport began assembling at least two hours before the ship was due to arrive on its 500-mile flight from Phoenix.

The millionaire Texas sportsman was clad in a rumpled white shirt and an old hat, and was grimy from the 500-mile flight.

Without preliminaries, Gov. Merriam extended the welcome of the state.

"Beloved Citizen"
"This is a happy occasion for Los Angeles," the governor said.

"Even though you are a native of Texas, Mr. Hughes, we welcome you as a beloved citizen."

Mayor Shaw gave the welcome of the city, saying:

"We are very proud of you, our adopted son, Mr. Hughes, and we welcome you with open arms."

Sheriff Biscailuz and Police Chief James E. Davis extended the welcoming greetings on behalf of the city and county.

From the airport the Hughes party drove through crowded downtown streets to a luncheon at the Biltmore hotel.

Fighters Control 800 Acre Blaze

BREMERTON, Wash., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Forest service crews today turned back an 800 acre fire that for a time threatened the city of Bremerton and prompted a call for U. S. Navy assistance.

District Fire Warden S. Trudeseon said the blaze was controlled at a point about nine miles from the city limits.

"Assistance from the Puget Sound navy yard will not be necessary," Trudeseon said. "We have 150 men on the fire line now, and with the arrival of more than 100 C. C. C. enrollees from Ranier and Elma, we'll have the situation well in hand."

The fire, fanned by a stiff east wind, yesterday leaped out of control and entered a valuable stand of timber protecting the Bremerton water supply.

Seek Origin Of $25,000 Blaze

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—An investigation was under way today to determine the origin of a fire which destroyed the $25,000 San Joaquin Valley Poultry Processors' Association plant here yesterday.

Fire Marshall L. A. Moore said he believed the blaze started from spontaneous combustion in stores of grain and straw. It spread rapidly through the plant, endangering for a time a Southern Pacific freight locomotive on an adjacent siding.

Complete Plans To Honor Rogers

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Plans were completed here today for the departure August 12 of a motorcade of state, county and city officials for Amarillo, Tex., where the Will Rogers Memorial Highway, extending from Chicago to Santa Monica, will be dedicated in a three-day celebration.

Leo Carrillo, film actor, and Irvin S. Cobb, writer and film actor, will head the Amarillo pageantry. Both were close friends of Rogers, who was killed near Fairbanks, Alaska, with Wiley Post in an airplane accident.

Another motorcade will leave Chicago at the same time the Santa Monica contingent departs. They will arrive August 15 at Amarillo, midway point of the 2600-mile highway.

Pair Killed In Airplane Crash

AVENAL, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Two women were dead and a young amateur pilot was hospitalized with critical injuries today following the crash of a privately owned airplane at the Avenal airport last night.

The victims were Mrs. Martha Downs, 21, and her sister, Mrs. Thomas Hutchinson, 35, both of Avenal.

John William Downs, 35, pilot and owner of the plane, was injured. Attendants at the hospital here said he had only a "slight" chance to live.

Paul R. Downs, husband of Mrs. Downs, and Gilbert Downs, a brother of the pilot, witnessed the crash.

Nab Man Wanted For L. B. Thefts

MERCED, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Merced county authorities today were preparing to return William B. Smales, 20, of Athlone, to Long Beach, Cal., to face prosecution on robbery charges.

Sheriff L. N. Cornell said Smales confessed robbing three service stations in Long Beach between July 22 and 28, obtaining $75. A small automatic pistol was found in his possession when he was captured in Sacramento last week, the sheriff said. He was wanted here on bad check charges.

Hope Fades For Clipper

MANILA, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Military authorities said tonight the search for the Hawaii Clipper, missing since 8:09 a. m. PST Thursday with 15 persons aboard, probably would be continued another week, unless a definite clue to the fate of the giant flying boat was discovered.

This announcement came at the end of the third day of searching the sea 565 miles east of Manila, where Captain Leo Terletzky of the ill-fated plane made his last report.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

An 80-year-old pedestrian, J. W. Hurd, 223 Huntington Beach boulevard, Midway City, was killed and 10 other persons injured during the week-end traffic in Orange county, records of police and hospital authorities showed today. Seven accidents were recorded.

Mr. Hurd died this morning in St. Joseph hospital from injuries received Saturday at 6:30 p. m. while crossing Huntington Beach boulevard near his home.

His death is the 35th in the county this year as compared with 53 last year.

Police Indicted For Conspiracy

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Six New York policemen, one a sergeant, seven agents of the U. S. treasury department and 90 other persons were charged in federal grand jury indictments today with conspiracy to defraud the government of alcohol taxes.

The indictments, voted and sealed last week, were opened today. Assistant U. S. Attorney W. M. Dickerson, who, with two special agents, had worked 10 months to "break" the case, said the group was one of the largest ever indicted on such charges.

Eighty-six of the 103 persons were in custody. They were scheduled to be arraigned later today.

Man Decapitated By Airplane

WINTHROP, Me., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Seconds after he pushed his wife into the water to safety, Walter McCarthy, 42 of Chelsea, Me., was decapitated by an airplane as he sat on a pier at Lake Maranacook.

The couple and several other persons were on the wharf when the plane, apparently in trouble swooped down. Spectators scattered but McCarthy took time to shove his wife into the lake. Before he could follow a wing of the plane struck him in the back of the neck.

Wagner Labor Act Fight Predicted

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., P., Wis., said today that out of the current hearings of his Senate Civil Liberties committee will arise recommendations for strengthening the Wagner Labor Relations act.

"There is no doubt," La Follette said, "from the evidence gathered by our committee that the right of labor to organize for collective bargaining has been frustrated."

"Undoubtedly recommendations will be made at the next session of Congress to strengthen the Wagner act."

La Follette's statement indicated that amendment to the Wagner act will be one of the bitterest issues of the next session of Congress.

CORRIGAN TO TOUR U. S. IN OLD PLANE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Douglas Corrigan, if the bureau of air commerce says okay, will tour American cities in the nine-year-old airplane which carried him on a "wrong direction" flight from New York to Dublin.

The 31-year-old Californian en route home on the U. S. Liner Manhattan, said last night in a National Broadcasting Co. interview that he hoped to fly first to Boston.

To avoid a "miscellaneous" such as that responsible for his landing in Ireland when, according to Corrigan, he thought he was headed for Los Angeles, he will "stay down where I can see the ground all the way."

Corrigan said he had received invitations from Boston and other cities, "including St. Louis, Chicago, San Francisco and of course, Galveston, Tex., where I was born."

Suspend License
He said he wanted to make the tour and added that the bureau of air commerce had been "you might say, more than fair."

The bureau, because Corrigan made the jump to Dublin without permission, suspended his license last week for five days, the suspension expiring next Thursday, the day he is scheduled to arrive here.

Before he starts any tour, however, Corrigan will have to submit to a New York reception. Both Brooklyn and Manhattan were planning to outdo themselves to give him a hero's welcome.

The two boroughs, in fact, were quarreling over which should greet him first. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia was expected to settle the dispute today.

HOBART, Ind., Aug. 1.—Five persons were killed today when their automobile crashed into the side of the locomotive of the Pennsylvania railroad's crack streamliner, the Broadway Limited.

NORMA SHEARER STEPS OUT OF FIERY SCARLETT O'HARA ROLE

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Hollywood's most publicized hunt for an actress was any lady's race again today, after Miss Norma Shearer dramatically stepped out of the spiffy role of Scarlett O'Hara in the movie version of "Gone With the Wind."

Miss Shearer, who was announced as the choice after nearly every actress in town but Shirley Temple had been considered at one time or another, stepped out in a brief mimeographed statement passed off by her studio's press agent.

"I have decided," she said, "that I should not play Scarlett. I am convinced that the majority of fans who think I should not play this kind of a character on the screen are right and I appreciate tremendously the interest they have shown."

Her press agents said Miss Shearer has been deluged with thousands of letters from fans protesting that they did not wish to see the veteran star on the screen in the unsympathetic role of the vixen in Margaret Mitchell's twenties.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Chinese forces under "Ever Victorious" Gen. Chen Cheng appeared today to have halted the Japanese march on Hankow and to have reoccupied important positions.

Chinese dispatches asserted that General Chen, one of China's cleverest military strategists, was directing a counter offensive which had pushed back the Japanese front lines.

SET WHIPSTOCK OIL CASE TRIAL DATES

Taking steps to prevent the courts from losing jurisdiction over the whipstock oil cases at Huntington Beach, the State of California today obtained the setting of trial dates for several of the cases, and arrangements for naming trial dates on a dozen other cases next Monday.

Superior Judge L. L. Turrentine, of San Diego, who has presided over the whipstock litigation here, was in Santa Ana today to conduct the proceedings which set trials for three of the suits. He will return Monday to set trial dates for the others.

Deadline Near
L. D. Campbell, of the attorney general's office, and Webb Shadel, of the state land department's legal staff, were here to represent the state. Present action on fixing trial dates was sought, they said, because the five-year period for taking such a step after the filing of suit will expire this fall.

The court already had filed stipulated judgments in the cases of more than 60 defendants, and dismissals have been filed in various other individual cases. The long list of defendants were grouped in 25 cases. In the pending cases, the state will seek merely to have the court recognize easements already stipulated between the state and the whipstock operators, who are under agreement to pay the state a royalty of production.

Woman Killed In Grade Accident

PLACERVILLE, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Authorities today checked circumstances of an automobile accident on the steep Meyers grade to Lake Tahoe yesterday which killed Mrs. Ruth Schoedsack, 81 of Los Angeles, and injured two other women.

The car occupied by the three women was near the top of the grade when it failed to round a hairpin curve and plunged 25 feet to the highway below. The victim's daughter, Venenuta Bennie Schoedsack, 51, and Mrs. Mary Krause, both of Los Angeles, will recover from their injuries. It was not reported which of the three women was driving.

Rangers William Mahoney and Gene Muelheisen, assisted by George Foster and Stuart Phillips, recovered the body.

12 Injured In "L" Car Crash

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—12 persons were injured, none seriously, today when two elevated trains collided on a trestle 100 feet above the street.

A three-car train containing 75 persons was leaving the 110th street station of the Ninth Avenue line when an empty seven-car train rounded a curve at full speed and crashed into the rear car.

GROUP BLASTS COUNTY UNITS AS "INEFFICIENT-WASTEFUL"

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Aug. 1.—(UP)—A general cleanup of county governments, termed the "most inefficient, extravagant and wasteful of all political units," was urged today at the Western Conference of Commercial and Trade Executives, which opened its annual meeting at the university.

An exposition of conditions and suggestions for improvement was contained in a United States chamber of commerce tax economy report, compiled from statistics presented by 40 chapters in Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

Wins Contest
Walla Walla, Wash., was named winner of the conference's first annual western tax economy contest. Judging was based solely on excellence of research work, although greater city and county tax economy is the aim of the contest.

The report said county government, in general, is "over elaborate, unduly expensive and inefficient" because administrative officers are elected without regard to qualifications and there is no one chief officer in county government to coordinate functions.

Centralization
The report suggested centralization of purchasing, careful attention to costs of welfare and charities, proper budgeting, employment of properly trained road engineer, and an "awakening to the necessity of developing unit costs and other standards of measurement as a means of determining the efficiency and costs of public service."

Only three counties reported public service systems, the survey stated. They were Alameda and Los Angeles in California, and Multnomah in Oregon.

Fees Varied
Mileage fees varied from $1.2 cents to 10 cents. Per meal costs in jails varied from 7.5 cents to 44 cents. Maintenance costs of roads per mile varied from $150 to $850.

The United States chamber of the conference, jointly sponsored the report, urged a careful study of governmental costs to determine reasons why some cities paid twice as much as others for identical services.

The report said county employees, in "many instances," were receiving 50 per cent more than employees in private life, performing similar work.

Action Predicted
For weeks, however, it had been predicted she would leave the role and be replaced by Katharine Hepburn or some other actress more suited to it.

Skeptics shook their heads when the tentative choice of Miss Shearer was made several weeks ago by Producer David O. Selznick. The producer had planned to produce the picture on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot and borrow the star from M-G-M. They pointed out that Miss Shearer is the beautifully profiled star of even-tempered roles. She is not, naturally, the peppy belle of Miss Mitchell's novel. Besides, Miss Shearer is 34 years old, and Scarlett O'Hara is 16 through her late 'teens and twenties.

Head Presides
The meeting under the sponsorship of the local McAdoo-for-governor organization, was presided over by Horace C. Head, and called by Head and Mrs. Mae Geeting. The other WPA men present were Frank Johnston, assistant director of operations and Robert J. Stevens, director of employment for this district.

Furnum's statement that hundreds would be employed on a state relief administration garden project "soon to be completed in all details," came as an answer to one of several questions propounded to the men by WPA workers, and men who formerly were on the government payroll in Orange county. He stated also that WPA in Orange county would employ all available certified "A" men—those capable of doing heavy work.

JAPANESE ARE BOMBED

TOKYO, Aug. 1.—(UP)—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency, today reported violent fighting on the Korean border.

Russian artillery and motorized infantry are reported to be concentrating on the Manchukuan-Korean-Siberian frontier, near the scene of week-end fighting between Russian and Japanese-Manchukuan troops in which more than 200 casualties occurred.

Troops Bombed
Latest Domei dispatch said Korean army headquarters issued a communique saying Soviet airplanes had twice machine-gunned Japanese positions on the Korean border.

The communique declared that the Soviet planes, after twice flying over Changkufeng in the disputed area and dropping bombs, machine-gunned the Japanese front position. Then they flew lower, reaching the Tumen river and invaded Korean territory, the communique said.

5 Planes Crash
It was charged that the planes bombed the railroad near Kimsajo and Kogi and later shelled a bridge near Kelko.

The Domei dispatch was not clear in some respects, but it indicated that the Japanese shot down five Soviet planes.

Korean army headquarters said the planes appeared first at Changkufeng at 2:30 p. m., according to Domei dispatches. A squad of five heavy bombers was then sighted over the Kogi area. Two appeared at Sazan, which was also attacked yesterday, and one at Suiryo.

Reports Uncertain
The report did not state whether the Soviet planes were brought down by Japanese planes or by anti-aircraft fire. Earlier reports of the newspaper Nichi Nichi had indicated that the Japanese had a number of planes on the border.

The telephone connection with Hsinking is made through Keijo and reports were arriving slowly because the line was being used for military purposes.

The newspaper Yomiuri reported that an additional regiment of Japanese infantry and artillery reinforcements arrived at Changkufeng today. The Korean army headquarters issued a communique at 8:30 p. m. indicating that further details would be revealed later.

CLAIM JAPANESE FORCES REPULSED

MOSCOW, Aug. 1.—(UP)—An official communique asserted today that Japanese troops had been repulsed with heavy losses in an attack on Russian troops on the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier.

Japanese allegations that Russian artillery in a separate clash fired on two Korean towns was dismissed as propaganda.

The official communique, issued through the Tass Agency, said:

Violated Frontier
"On July 31 Japanese militarists violated the Soviet frontier on the hills west of Lake Khassan. Opening unexpected artillery fire the Japanese troops at night suddenly attacked the Soviet frontier guard troops stationed on the border."

"The Japanese occupied Soviet territory to a depth of four kilometers. Fighting which lasted several hours broke out on the hills west of Lake Khassan."

Met Rebuff
"The Japanese militarists met a strong rebuff and the Japanese troops suffered great losses in men."

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Four bandits robbed a branch of the Banco Di Napoli in Eastside New York today and escaped with a valise reportedly containing $70,000 in cash.

The bandits held 14 customers and six bank employees at bay while their leader seized the bag from the bank manager's desk.

Only 11 minutes later an armored car was 15 minutes later made the robbery possible. The armored car arrived at the bank each day at 1:30 p. m. to transport cash to the bank's main office in Broadway.

Joseph Salvo, the bank manager, was prepared to turn over the money to the crew of the armored truck, when the bandits entered the bank.

FBI OPENS QUIZ IN STRIKE-TORN WESTWOOD

INQUIRY BASED ON AFFIDAVITS

WESTWOOD, Cal., Aug. 1—(UP)—The United States Department of Justice today opened an investigation of alleged vigilantes, unfair labor practices and violations of civil rights in this strike-town town in which violence has long marked bitter union factional warfare.

Federal bureau of investigation agents established headquarters in adjacent Sussanville on orders from Attorney General Homer Cummings. Nat Peiper, agent in charge, said Cummings ordered the investigation after considering more than 100 affidavits from Committee for Industrial Organization refugees who were driven from the town at gun point in a C.I.O. purge.

Largest In World

On July 13, the long smoldering Feather river country labor war reached a climax with hand-to-hand fighting in the streets of Westwood, a town owned and controlled by the Red River Lumber company, whose plant is the largest of its kind in the world.

Armed citizens and members of the industrial employers union attacked C.I.O. pickets at the plant gate and drove them off. The C.I.O. had called a strike at the plant a few days previously in protest against a 17½ per cent wage cut. The company attempted to reopen with employees who had refused to strike, but at last shut down indefinitely. The National Labor Relations Board previously had refused to recognize the I.E.U. as exclusive bargaining agency for the mill workers on the ground the union was "company controlled."

One Man Is Shot

At dawn July 13, a group of I.E.U. workers seized the town's fire department and sounded a siren as a mobilization call. Armed forces immediately gathered. The C.I.O. pickets were dispersed in fierce fighting. One man was shot, scores received cracked heads.

Troops were started toward the town but were recalled by the governor before they reached it, when local authorities said they could control the situation.

Homes Are Entered

After the first fighting, C.I.O. reinforcements poured into Westwood from nearby lumber camps and the fighting became general. Police were powerless. C.I.O. workers were marched from town at gunpoint, and their families were taken from their homes and escorted beyond the town limits. The mob set up a kangaroo court in a street and workers were brought before it. If they were judged to be C.I.O. sympathizers they were made to leave. Men with rifles entered homes and ordered women and children to follow the C.I.O. workers. Many were obliged to go without their personal belongings.

Several hundred were cared for in Sacramento, and a week later were returned to Westwood under police protection.

It's easy to see that Clara Bow doesn't care about being in moving pictures ever again as she poses for the first time with her 7-week-old son, George Robert Bell, in Hollywood. Youth Is Victim Of Knife Attack

Mysterious assailants slashed Russell Smith, 18, 809 Brown street, on the hand between 11 p. m. and midnight Saturday when they stopped him on East Sixth street near the Model laundry and asked the direction to Logan street, Ned Cogswell of 809 Brown, told police early yesterday.

"I couldn't tell them the way to go to Logan street," Smith was quoted as saying, "and then one of two men got out the car they were driving and attacked me with a knife, cutting my finger."

Smith said he ran and escaped. He could not identify either man but said the knife wielder was of heavy build and wore grey hat and shirt.

CANDIDATES ARE INVITED

All candidates for non-partisan county offices have been invited to the "All Orange County Sheppard picnic" at 6 p. m. today at Irvine Park, it was announced today by H. F. Kenny, chairman of the committee in charge. Congressman Harry R. Sheppard will be the chief speaker at the picnic and will discuss problems pertinent to Orange county.

reopened with the announcement that C.I.O. workers would be rehired without discrimination. However, groups of I.E.U. workers stood at the plant gates and ordered C.I.O. members to "go home or join the American Federation of Labor."

The I.E.U. received an A.F.O.L. charter following the rioting.

CARRIER BOYS VISIT ISLAND

Memories of a "glorious outing on one of the Pacific's gayest pleasure islands—Catalina—today brought new enthusiasm to the ranks of carrier boys of The Register." R. M. Conklin, circulation manager, revealed this morning.

Nearly 100 of the boys were assembled in the downtown section early yesterday morning by R. B. Biles and H. E. Reynolds, assistant circulation managers, who supervised the all-day party. The large group left by bus for Wilmington and sailed from that city at 8 p. m. on the "Catalina."

Speedboat Rides
"They earned the trip during a subscription campaign," Biles explained, "and they sure had a grand time. There was everything in the way of sports and entertainment to occupy their time." They visited the bird farm, took a ride on skyline drive, rode in glass bottom boats, went speed-boating and raced in outboard motor boats. It was one grand round of good times and thrills from start to finish. Many of the boys made the trip over for the first time. We made the return trip on the 'Avalon' and there were nearly 1300 on board this boat. We arrived back in Santa Ana about 9:45 p. m. Sunday. Of course, they were guests of The Register."

COMPLAINTS OF FLYING

On complaint of Mr. and Mrs. E. Webster that an airplane pilot was stunting too low over Santa Ana yesterday afternoon, police investigated and were informed Lee Strickland, 1406 Durant, was the pilot. Floyd Martin of the Eddie Martin airport, said he was told by friends that Strickland did not fly too low and was never below the 5000-foot level. Mrs. Webster said she saw the plane make three loop-the-loops. Webster said he possibly would sign a complaint against the pilot today.

All of the victims died at the county hospital of tuberculosis.

First of the blighted family to go was Margarita, Mary's year-old sister, who died on July 8. Less than 24 hours later, three-year-old Socorro, had succumbed.

Fourteen days later, Henry Oviedo, 39, father of the 10 children in the family, followed Mary, Margarita and Socorro.

Surviving is the widow, Mrs. Esther Oviedo, and seven children, Julia, Rita, Della, Rosa, Henry, Phillip and Joseph.

Funeral services for Mary will be held at 3 p. m. today at Winbigler mortuary. Interment will be made at Santa Ana cemetery.

25-CENT HOUR WAGE RAPED

Two hundred fifty Mexican vegetable workers in the employ of Japanese ranchers of the Laguna Beach, Stanton and Talbert districts, went on strike this morning in a protest against the 25-cent-per-hour pay, Lucas Lucio, representative of the working group, announced.

The walk-out will affect the tomato, strawberry, string bean, cabbage, sweet corn and chili crops, he said.

Meeting Tonight
According to Lucio who said a meeting of the workers is scheduled for tonight at Talbert, the arbitration board, composed of representatives of the workers, employers and Thomas Barker, state labor commissioner, set forth an agreement, signed by workers and employers in which the wage was to be 30 cents per hour for a nine-hour day through July 31.

Tells Of Agreement
"The Japanese growers, however, dissatisfied with the 30-cent rate, cut the wages to 25 cents about July 1 in violation of the agreement," Lucio said. "On July 15, I filed a petition on behalf of the workers, with the arbitration board asking that a 35-cent wage be paid."

The workers plan to decide tonight on their future course of action, Lucio said.

WORLD TENSE AS RUSSIA AND POLICE DUSY IN JAPAN BATTLE OVER BOUNDARY CHECK ON BILLS

BY UNITED PRESS

Russian concentrations of troops and artillery on the Manchukuan border in the Vladivostok region were reported today, threatening a possibly grave outcome of the border dispute.

Serious fighting occurred over the weekend, with casualties estimated at several hundred.

The two countries exchanged recriminations, each accusing the other of violating its territory and being the aggressor. Tokyo officials held anxious consultations and leaders of the government and the army general staff consulted with the emperor.

Tokyo claimed that Japanese-Manchukuan troops had recaptured the disputed hill in the Manchukuo-Korean-Siberian border triangle, driving off the Russians who had previously occupied it.

Therefore, Japan said, the status quo has been restored and she is willing to negotiate. Indications from Moscow, however, were that Russia is prepared to fight, necessary, not negotiate. The Soviet version was that the Japanese claims of military success were untrue and that the Russians had repulsed the Japanese.

While the northern dispute went on, the Japanese were having their troubles in China. The resistance of the Chinese defending Hankow stiffened and the Japanese advance along the Yangtze appeared to have been checked, at least temporarily.

In Europe, attention centered on the Czechoslovak minority situation. While statesmen argued, Czech troops held intensive maneuvers in preparation for defense of their country if need arises.

French leaders held up their vacations to keep close touch with the situation. They remembered events in Europe 24 years ago today, when Germany declared war on Russia and France mobilized.

Czech officials showed little inclination to cooperate, while heartily with Viscount Runciman.

Five Autos 'Pile' Up As One Car Stops Suddenly

All because a machine stopped suddenly on the Coast highway near the Signal Oil station at Newport Beach yesterday at 4:40 p. m., five cars piled up, with the driver of one Mrs. Dorothea Oyer, of Los Angeles, being treated for cuts on her nose and forehead.

The driver of car No. 1, J. W. Laughlin of Los Angeles, was forced to bring his machine to a sudden stop in a traffic jam. Car No. 2, operated by Vincent Smith of Walnut Park, smashed into the Laughlin auto. Car No. 3, driven by O. C. Weist of Pomona, crashed into the Smith machine. Car No. 4, owned by Ann Burnett of General delivery, Del Mar, hit the Weist car and No. 5, operated by Mrs. Oyer, struck the Burnett machine.

Damage to the autos was chiefly of a minor nature.

It is estimated that about 28,000 passengers go through Memphis, Tenn., every year on the various airlines.

Jesse C. Partida, of Santa Ana, who pleaded guilty to theft of $17 in the burglary of Guadalupe Garcia's home at 946 West Highland, Santa Ana, July 21, was scheduled to receive a hearing today before Superior Judge James L. Allen, in connection with a plea for probation. Garcia was Partida's neighbor.

Asks For Report
Mrs. Margaret Soto, 35, 907 Stafford street, Santa Ana, pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of her six children, by being intoxicated in her home. The court advised her attorney, Alfred Appaling, that he desired a report of the probation officer before passing sentence. The charge against Mrs. Soto was filed after she served a term in jail for intoxication on June 23, two men being arrested for assault and battery at her home. Her children have been transferred to other homes.

Probation Hearings
Clayton S. Russell, 65, who received an Old Age pension, and who had pleaded guilty in justice court to an offense against a five-year-old girl who came to his home to pick flowers July 11, will receive a probation hearing next Friday.

Lose Hope For Missing Clipper

The search from Guam tomorrow. Two amphibian planes from the U. S. S. Heron today flew considerably south of the southernmost route any clipper plane travels in an ever widening hunt for the lost ship.

It was estimated by navy officials that the search area covered between 25,000 and 26,000 square miles in the search thus far and that much of the area had been recrossed many times.

The army's 28th bombardment squadron flew in a long scale triangle, pointing at Clark Field, Tacloban and approximately five degrees east of the clipper's last reported position.

Cover Wide Area
The navy tender Meigs circled about 50 miles south of the clipper's last position. Aviators said at a height of 6000 feet, 4,000 feet they were able to spot a six-foot length of bamboo floating on the surface and doubted that under such circumstances they would have overlooked wreckage had they flown over any.

However, hope had been virtually abandoned that the face of the Clipper would ever be known.

The military and naval authorities, although, did not intend to give up the search, expressed belief that if the plane did not crash in the sea it would have been found by one of the 14 vessels and seven planes which conducted the intensive hunt.

EXPLODER OFFERS TO AID SEARCH
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Richard Archbold, millionaire naturalist now situated at Lake Habema, 300 miles in the interior of New Guinea, today had offered the services of his $250,000 "flying laboratory" to aid in the search for the missing Hawaii clipper.

In contact with San Diego by short wave radio, Archbold, who recently flew his huge flying boat across the Pacific, offered Pan American officials the services of the ship which he believed to be the only real long-distance plane available in that part of the world.

Noted Artist Called by Death

NEWCASTLE, N. H., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Edmund C. Tarbell, 76, widely known artist, died at his summer home today after a fortnight's illness.

A native of West Groton, Mass., he was educated at Boston Museum of Fine Arts and studied under Boulangier and Lefevre at Paris, France. In 1929 he was awarded an honorary doctorate of literature by Dartmouth College.

Tarbell had won many national and international awards for his paintings. His portrait of Calvin Coolidge hangs in the President's gallery of the Massachusetts senate.

Christian Science

"Love" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist.

The Golden Text was the Psalm: "The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works."

The Lesson - Sermon included these verses about Jesus from Luke: "And he spake this parable unto them, saying: Whoso man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it? And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing. And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them: Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost. I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

Among the passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, were the statements: "The sharp experiences of belief in the superstitious life of matter, as well as our disappointments and ceaseless woes, turn us like tired children to the arms of divine Love."

Japanese Line Is Pushed Back

the towns of Samoushan and Chiao-tsun. In battles for these towns, the dispatches asserted, more than 2000 Japanese were killed or wounded.

The Japanese confirmed that the Chinese were on the offensive, but claimed that they were suffering heavy casualties, too heavy, they said, for the gains to compensate.

Crack Troops Slain
A Japanese spokesman asserted that more than two divisions of crack Chinese troops were virtually decimated.

East of Hukow, the Chinese claimed to have cut all Japanese communications. They said their planes had scored many hits on Japanese warships anchored in the Yangtze there.

Despite these Chinese claims, the Japanese said their drive on Hankow was "proceeding satisfactorily."

New Equipment
"Ever Victorious" Chen had considerable new foreign equipment, including tanks, anti-tank guns and heavy artillery concentrated in the area between Kiukiang and Hankow.

The Chinese government officially admitted for the first time over the week end that Hankow was endangered. A military spokesman said that the broadening of the Japanese front in the upper Yangtze valley indicated the probability of a three sided attack on the capital.

MANY MAJOR PARTY ISSUES MARK PRIMARIES

NEW DEAL TEST FOR KENTUCKY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Clear tests of both Republican and New Deal-Democratic leadership will be made this week among some of six primary elections.

President Roosevelt intervened forcefully in Kentucky to obtain renomination of Sen. Alben W. Barkley, his hand-picked senate leader. Barkley is opposed in the Aug. 6 primary to Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, a New Dealer in his own right until he challenged the senator's position.

Warnings Given

In Kansas tomorrow the nation will watch the progress of the Rev. Gerald B. Winrod who is seeking Republican senatorial nomination against three candidates and over the protest of Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the national committee, William Allen White, Kansas editor, and other party leaders.

Three additional primaries are scheduled for tomorrow, Virginia, Missouri and West Virginia. The sixth primary will take place this week in Tennessee where the conduct of Democratic campaigns for senatorial nomination has brought warnings from the senate campaign expenditures committee.

Unfriendly To New Deal

Virginia's eighth congressional district is smoldering with bitter charges between William E. Dodd Jr., who is establishing himself as a New Deal candidate for the seat occupied by Rep. Howard W. Smith. Smith's record as a member of the house rules committee has classed him among Democratic legislators cool and unfriendly to many Roosevelt policies and he has been blacklisted by labor's non-partisan league, political instrument of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

"To nominate him (Winrod) White has told the people of Kansas, 'I must defend his position as a peddler of racial and religious hatred—the Nazi position, in short.'"

Tomorrow's Missouri primary probably will make three in a row for the renomination of Democratic senator who a year ago were thought to have been in jeopardy because of their opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's judiciary reorganization bill. Sen. Bennett C. Clark, Democrat, who was as willing to run without White House support as with it, is expected to be renominated easily. Of the anti-court bill senators up so far none has been defeated for renomination. Already in are Sen. Frederick W. Nyquist, D. Ind., and Sen. Guy M. Gillette, D. Ia.

Power At Stake

But there is a contest in Missouri involving a relatively unimportant judicial nomination over which Democratic Boss Thomas J. Pendergast and Gov. Lloyd C. Stark have been unable to agree. Campaign for that office has developed into a contest between Stark and Pendergast for control of the state organization. Both factions, however, support Clark.

The fourth of tomorrow's primaries, in West Virginia, has been quiet. It has no party bolts or purges, nor is there either gubernatorial or senatorial office in issue. No candidate has been blacklisted.

A German bicycle trooper is shown clearing a wide ditch in the annual competitions held on the Reich Sports Plaza at Grunewald. In the background are other troopers, one of whom will seize the bicycle and carry it on in the relay race to test the stamina of the German soldiers. Similar games are held in this summer.

Fireworks Expected

Tennessee's Aug. 4 primary promises fireworks. On July 26 the senate campaign expenditures committee criticized Democratic campaign methods in Tennessee as pointing "sharply toward an election contest in the United States senate, regardless of which candidate triumphs." Memphis Boss Ed Crump and Sen. Kenneth McKellar are backing Tom Stewart for Democratic senatorial nomination. He is opposing Sen. George L. Berry who is backed by the state machine of Gov. Gordon Browning. Both sides have been charged with political activity among state and federal employees, respectively.

Kentucky offers a clear cut and acknowledged test of Mr. Roosevelt's political leadership. He campaigned for Barkley passing westward through the state toward his fishing vacation. Widely printed polls give Barkley a good lead over Chandler and the latter's nomination would surprise most observers here. It also would paralyze the New Deal-Democratic high command with devastating force. Some persons believe Mr. Roosevelt not only picked Barkley as senate leader to succeed the late Joe P. Robinson a year ago but has him in mind as a possible 1940 New Deal presidential candidate.

NO HIRED GIRL IN U. S. HOME

WASHINGTON — (UP)—Labor-saving machines have displayed the hired girl in the typical American village home, a nationwide survey by the Department of Agriculture shows.

"There now are statistics to show that James Whitcomb Riley's children's classic, 'The Hired Girl' no longer portrays the typical in American village life," the department said.

She was the family factotum who lived in the household, cooked such good things to eat that the children loitered about her kitchen table until she chased them away with some such refrain as:

"Clear out of my way; there's time for work and time for play! Take your dough and run, child, run, or I can't get no cooking done!"

In reaching its conclusion the department studied "household help" tables of 8,434 white non-relief families in 140 typical villages in all sections of the country.

"The importance of 'our hired girl' has decreased as services of commercial bakeries and laundries have increased, as canneries and garment factories have grown and as labor-saving devices have come into the home," Dr. Louise Stanley, home economics director who supervised the survey, said.

"Then, too," she added, "many a homemaker would rather spend for a car and widen her social contacts than to spend for a maid if this means only leisure to sit on the front porch and watch the neighbors ride by."

The New England and Pacific regions were lowest in percentage of families having hired help and in average amount spent. In the former only one in twenty-five families employed help. The average of all families was $4 a year.

On the Pacific Coast, the percentage of such families ranged from four in the low income bracket to 42 in the highest. Hired help for the housewife was slightly more prevalent in North Central, Middle Atlantic, Plains and Mountain states.

The Southeastern village housewife, in contrast to her Northern and Western sisters, stood a very good chance of having help.

CITRUS INSECT CONTROL WORK STRESSED IN QUAYLE VOLUME

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 1.—(Special to The Register)—"Insects of Citrus and Other Subtropical Fruits," is the title of a new book of nearly 600 pages, just published, and of which the author is Dr. Henry J. Quayle, professor of entomology of the University of California, and entomologist at the Citrus Experiment Station here.

The volume contains 377 illustrations, and is compiled to be of value to actual growers, as well as to all officials concerned with agriculture, as a text-book for teachers, and a reference book for students in the field of insect pest control.

Many Crops Mentioned

The book discusses, primarily, the biology and control of the insects that attack citrus fruits in all of the important citrus producing countries of the world. The insects of the avocado are treated, as well as the insects that attack other subtropical crops in the United States. These include the crops of the Vinifera grape, Persian walnut, almond, pecan, fig, olive, date, oriental persimmons, and the pomegranate.

Growers will find in the book an account of the life habits of the various pests and specific directions for their control. There is included a complete account of the biology and economics of the species including that of their parasites and predators. The keys, descriptions, and illustrations will enable the teacher or student to identify the species, and references are given as to the source of information and for further reading.

Years of Research

A portion of the book represents compilation from other sources, but much of it represents the culmination of studies made directly by Dr. Quayle himself. Most of his time during the past 30 years in California has been spent in the study of the insects of the grape, citrus, walnut, and avocado, the chief crops of subtropical horticulture. His three sabbatical years, during this period, were spent in the study of the citrus insects in the various countries of the world, which enabled him to discuss the insects of other countries from first-hand knowledge.

The volume is published by the Comstock Publishing Company, of Ithaca, New York.

RUSTLERS IN BAY STATE

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (UP)—Cattle rustlers have stolen a calf from Antoine Vincent's farm. Automobile tire marks indicated the means used by the thieves. Several other cattle thefts have been reported in Bristol county, which has many dairy farms.

PET TALKS

—By Mrs. T. J. Neal—

"Since Hector was a pup" you've all heard this odd saying and perhaps have wondered what it really meant. Hector was a Boston terrier, born in 1891, and first of the breed to be registered with the American Kennel Club. Hector lived to be a very old dog and some member of his family started the adage.

Cats cannot see in the dark as well as people think although they can see with much less light than other animals. Twilight is when the cat enjoys his most perfect vision. A cat's eye will contract or dilate in proportion to the degree of light. In a bright light the pupil is contracted, sometimes into a mere line. It is with difficulty that the cat can see at this time.

Does anyone have a part Wire-hair puppy to give to a good home? If you have, please, please phone 1836-J.

Distemper is a much dreaded and contagious disease of dogs. Dogs of all ages may be attacked by it, but especially young ones from about three to eighteen months. Once a dog has had distemper and recovered, he is generally immune against further attacks, although dogs have been known to have had it two and three times. If a puppy falls a victim to this disease, he should be isolated, kept warm, dry and very, very quiet or he probably will not recover. Put him to bed and keep him there just as you would a person with the flu. Fortunately distemper is not contagious to humans. More next week.

POLICEMAN USES PSYCHOLOGY

OAKLAND, Cal. (UP)—Oratory is not the least of the qualifications of Policeman William S. Murphy. Sent to arrest a man who had barricaded himself and kept a rifle pointed through a crack at the policeman, Murphy painted such an eloquent word picture of the agonies of a man being gassed at San Quentin for murder that the man dropped the rifle and exclaimed: "You've convinced me. I just can't shoot."

ORDERS LIQUOR STAMPS VOIDED

Authority to destroy liquor excise tax stamps with a face value of $13,349.69 has been granted the state liquor administrator by the state board of equalization.

The stamps included those purchased by licensees after audit of their accounts by the board showed the need of additional stamps, confiscations by liquor control officers in connection with law violations, stamps purchased by common carriers and others which had been damaged.

While the face value of the stamps represented a considerable figure, their cost to the state represented only $22.44.

CANADA BUILDS GIANT HANGARS

WINNIPEG, Man. — (UP)—The Trans-Canada Air Lines' hangars here and at Lethbridge have been built with an eye to the future.

Reaping the benefit of the experience of American and European airlines, whose hangars often have proved inadequate as large aircraft came into use. Trans-Canada officials have designed both the Winnipeg and Lethbridge hangars so that the space in them can be doubled if necessary, giving a clear opening of 200 feet, or sufficient to accommodate any size of aircraft likely to be used in the Canadian service.

The main hangar and the two-story administration building here have been completed, and the general staffs and technicians have been transferred from temporary offices to the permanent quarters. Aircraft will be moved into the hangar as soon as the taxi strips from the main runways of the airport are completed. Part of the machine shop, engine test house and several concrete aprons are still under construction.

The main hangar, of brick construction and with steel framework supporting huge areas of glass on two sides, is large enough to accommodate four of the Lockheed 14's at one time, together with smaller aircraft.

Expert Cites Need Of Playgrounds

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (UP)—Playground facilities should be available for adults as well as children, Miss Ethel Bowers of the National Recreation association declared at a Syracuse recreation institute.

Miss Bowers said playgrounds, as community centers, were becoming increasingly vital to the social stability of American urban areas.

But, she continued, the duty of playground directors does not confine itself to the playground. She pointed out that a part of the director's work was to teach people how to re-create their lives through play, off the playground, far.

BY THE BAT BOY

One more week of this pinch hitting and we'll give you back the old reliable Eddie West and his West Winds, just like Ty Cobb gave back Detroit to Henry Ford after he retired from baseball.

Speaking of Ty Cobb reminds me of the time I was sent to watch Ty Cobb play for a week with the idea of writing a nice sports article about Ty's technique in base stealing. For six days I watched the great and only Ty get on base, game after game, but for six days he failed to steal a base. The business office wired me to come home, expenses weren't worth all the stolen bases in the American league. I went back home and the day I got back Ty stole four bases, including home.

Last week in talking about Frank Gotch and Hackenschmidt, I failed to mention one of my favorites of the mat. That was Joe Stecher. Joe never measured up to the greatness of Gotch, but I'm here to tell you that Joe was in there pitching every time he pulled on the long-legged underwear they wore in those days for trunks. Joe took his title seriously and he took his wrestling seriously. I recall the day when he was working out with Jack Meyers in a gymnasium in Omaha. Jack kept getting rougher and rougher until finally Joe said "so you want to get rough, eh," and laid Meyers flatter than a griddle cake with a well directed French kick to the jaw. I guess that was the start of the present day circus wrestlers.

Speaking of this same Meyers, I referred several of his matches in Iowa and four or five years later I was in Boise, Idaho when a match was arranged between Ad Santele and a bird by the name of Romanoff of the famous Russian Romanoffs. I was chosen as the referee and imagine my surprise when Romanoff crawled into the ropes and was none other than Jack Meyers. Today this same Romanoff is an extra in the movies.

Recalling those old days in Omaha I remember going to Lincoln to cover a football game between Nebraska and Iowa. Jumbo Steinhilber was coaching Nebraska and at that time the Iowa game was the big game of the year. Jumbo, a great believer in psychology as applied to football sent five teams on the field against the Iowa team. The first eleven men trotted out on the field, ran signals and went to the bench. Then came a little larger team until finally the first and largest arrived. But this time the Iowa team was goggle-eyed and was licked before it even started the game.

Jumbo was a great coach and before that had been a sweet player for Wisconsin.

In his time he ranked with Zupke of Illinois, Doc Williams of Minnesota and Stagg of Chicago. I recall the time Doc Williams came out to watch a football game between St. Paul and Minneapolis high school teams. I was playing with a St. Paul team against the Minneapolis Central for the state title. Our team had 14 players on the roster and no coach. Minneapolis had 30 or more on the roster and a high priced coach. One of our team spotted Doc Williams in a front row seat and between halves asked him if he would come down and give the boys a pep talk.

"Sure," said Doc and sure enough he showed up. He looked over the 12 players, all in but their shoes, strings and said "where's the rest of 'em." He was told the whole squad was there. Doc looked agast and said "mebbe you boys better give me the pep talk." We managed to finish the game with 10 players but the championship went to Minneapolis. Later Doc got some of those same 12 boys and they made good.

In line with Doc Williams I remember the first big college game I witnessed. It was the memorable 6 to 6 tie between Minnesota and Michigan. Of the 22 players who started the game only Capt. Eddie Rogers, an Indian end for Minnesota, lasted the two halves. Bobby Marshall, the other Negro end for the Gophers went out two plays before the game finished. Rogers kicked the goal that tied the score after the touchdown. There were still three minutes to play, but that game never was officially finished for the crowd had left the stands and was lined up on the sidelines.

After Captain Rogers booted the ball between the uprights the crowd swarmed onto the field and the contest ended right there. More later.

Greenberg Ahead of Ruth But Still Has Tough Time In Offing

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Any moment now some enterprising reporter is going to get hold of Hank Greenberg, first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, and get an exclusive interview concerning his chances of bettering Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in one season.

In a burst of confidence, and with a warning not to repeat it to a soul, Greenberg is going to tell the reporter something very much like this: "To tell you the truth, I haven't given the business of breaking Babe's record a thought. I've just been going up there and taking my cut at the ball and letting what happens happen. I've been lucky lately, that's all. There never was a home run hitter like Ruth, and I don't guess there ever will be."

When I read this interview—and it's coming, just as sure as tomorrow is—I am going to say "cashew," which is just another way of saying "nuts."

Because Hank Greenberg is a smart young man; one of the smartest young men in baseball, in fact. He knows—and he knows he knows!—that today he has hit 37 home runs in 92 games. He knows, too, that in 1927, the year Babe smacked his 60 round trips, he hit his 37th homer in the Yankees' 113th game—on August 16.

Don't you ever believe that a fellow with so sound mental equipment as Greenberg's doesn't realize what it would mean to him to beat the mighty Ruth's mighty mark. Ruth made a fortune out of it. A fortune awaits Greenberg if he tops the mark that for a while appeared as if it might stand for all time.

All the things that came to Ruth would come to Hank, whose ancestral home stands proudly in the Bronx, only a few blocks from the Yankee stadium where Ruth rose to fame and fortune. We would have a Greenberg era just as we had a Ruthian era.

Hank's homers would become known as "typical Greenbergian swats" just as Babe's were always referred to as "Ruthian efforts or swats or pokes."

He would be a man apart—a mighty man. The number on his back would become sacred, just as did Red Grange's 77 and Ruth's 3.

A press agent would take him under his wing and build him into a great writer, a great talker, a great actor, a great lover of children (injured or uninjured) and a great endorser, ready to testify to the merits of everything from stainless steel chicken wire to busters for women.

But will Hank top Ruth's mark? It all depends on Hank, the stuff he's made of, and luck. It is the customary thing for home run hitters to go into a sad decline the moment they come within striking distance of 60 or more homers a year. The technical explanation for this decline is that they become "home run" conscious and start pressing—start trying to make every hit a homer. Pressing destroys the fluency of their swing and they get no hits, homers or anything else.

Too, Greenberg may be ahead of Ruth at the moment, but he will have to close with a rush to match the final drive that Babe staked in 1927. Ruth banged out 17 homers in the final month of the 1927 season.

In the second half of the double main go Badge Diaz, another protege of Virgil McCarthy, takes on "Kid" Buddy of Los Angeles. Sal Baca, Diamond Belt champion, is scheduled for the semi-windup where he will fight Tino Sanchez of Los Angeles.

Tonight's fights will mark the return to Orange county of fighters from the Pacific coast. The first four preliminary bouts will feature "Sailor" Joe George against Les Wasilichen; Jimmy Pollard and Benny Garcia; Jimmy Flynn and Paul Brown and Jack Darcy against Bert Duran.

MAKO DENIES RIFT WITH DONALD BUDGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Don't believe "silly rumors" that Gene Mako will not be the doubles partner of Don Budge in the forthcoming Davis Cup matches.

"O don't know what started these reports of a fight between Mako and me," said Budge, the world's No. 1 amateur from Oakland, Cal., upon arrival here aboard the liner Britannic. "They're downright silly. You see us sharing the same cabin on this boat. We've been traveling together for two months in Europe. We've been pals for a long time and always will be."

Don also spiced rumors that the U. S. Lawn Tennis association might sever their doubles partnership of defense of the cup in September.

"We've been playing together for four years," he said. "I think we've done all right. During that time, we lost only one Davis Cup match, and that was to Australia two years ago."

SIX TEAMS CLASH IN COUNTY LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Opinions will differ, of course, should Chicago sport to a commanding position in the National League, but before you give too much credit to Gabby Hartnett, Dizzy Dean, or the flavor of Mister Wrigley's choon gun, lend a passing thought to Billy Jurgas.

You might not have been taking cognizance of the Cub shortstop's play these past few days, which is perfectly natural, what with the great Dean returning to work and Hartnett's appointment as manager taking precedence over all other news anent the Wrigley Fielders.

Yet veteran baseball heads see in Jurgas the prime reason why the Bruins put a stop to their tailskidding and started an upward climb.

Last year Jurgas was enjoying his greatest season at bat, with a mark above .350, and Chicago was well out in front of the pack. Then he was injured and couldn't regain his eye.

There were other mishaps, of course, but it perhaps was significant that it was with the actual loss of Jurgas and his subsequent loss of form that the Cubs hit the downward path that ultimately saw them blowing the pennant to the Giants.

SWITCH TO LEADOFF POST IMPROVES JURGES' BATTING

When he reported at Catalina Island this spring, Jurgas was still one of the finest fielding shortstops in the game, but he hadn't yet found the batting coordination which made him such a dangerous hitter midway of 1937. And up until a short while ago his batting average hovered in the low .200s.

As one of his final acts of strategy, Charley Grimm switched Jurgas from the eighth spot in the batting order to that of lead-off man.

Jurgas suddenly began to hit. The Cubs were in their winning streak as the Brooklyn product's average shot above .300.

The scrappy shortstop quickly revealed a knack for getting on base... commenced to draw bases on balls, and, as leadoff man, naturally scored more runs than ever before.

The happy Jurgas can't quite explain it.

Back On Farm to Cure Arm

Paul Dean is a disconsolate figure as he divides his weight between a cultivator and a hoe while contemplating his baseball future. Dean believes that he finally has found the cure that will restore the effectiveness that was his when he was a St. Louis Cardinal here in 1934 and '35. It is hard work on his farm near Dallas.

ALICE MARBLE TRIMS BUNDY TO WIN SEABRIGHT TROPHY

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 1.—(UP)—It cost the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket club the price of its silver trophy bowl to have Alice Marble play in its 51st annual invitation tournament.

By taking the women's singles title for the third straight time yesterday Miss Marble retired the trophy and now the club must buy a new one.

Miss Marble, former national champion and now ranking national, had an easy time beating Dorothy May Bundy in the tournament final, scoring 6-2, 6-2. It was the first Seabright trophy to be retired since Helen Jacobs did it in 1932 with three victories.

Adding to her honors, the California girl teamed with Hal Surface, Jr., to win the mixed doubles title with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Dorothy Andrus, New York, and Bobby Riggs, Chicago. On Saturday, when Riggs retained his men's singles title, Miss Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabry, Cambridge, Mass., won the women's doubles title by beating Mrs. Andrus and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France.

Joe Hunt, Los Angeles, and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., former Davis cup player, won the men's doubles title yesterday, beating the 20 year old Chicago twins, William and Chester Murphy, 8-6, 6-2, 8-6.

U. S. ATHLETES WIN 100 YARD DASH, HURDLES

BULLETIN
LONDON, Aug. 1.—(UP)—American athletes ran away with Britain's "miniature Olympic games" today in the White City stadium.

The American team won seven of the 14 event program. More than 90 athletes from 17 nations competed under a broiling sun before a crowd of 33,500.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(UP)—Sydney Wooderson, London bank clerk who holds the world outdoor mile record, failed today in his attempt to lower the world half mile mark in Great Britain's "miniature Olympic games" at White City stadium.

Wooderson won the race, feature event of meet in which more than 90 athletes from 17 nations participated, but he was one and one-tenth seconds under the 1:43.8 record set by Ben Eastman of Stanford in 1934.

Wooderson went the distance in 1:50.9, beating the British record of 1:51.6. Mario Lanzi of Italy was second in 1:51.1, also bettering the English mark. Arthur Collyer of England was third.

The bespectacled Englishman won by three yards while Lanzi finished four yards ahead of Collyer. Charley Fenske of Wisconsin, member of America's touring track team, did not start. Lanzi led until 80 yards from home and then faded when Wooderson opened up.

Jackson Patterson of Rice also shattered a British mark, winning the 440 yard low hurdles in 43 seconds compared to the old mark of 53.4. Patterson finished six yards ahead of Josef Kovacs of Hungary. Jules Bosmans of Belgium was third.

Perrin Walker of the New York Athletic club won the hundred yard dash in 9.9 seconds. He beat by half yard Marty Osendarp of Holland who finished a foot ahead of Orazio Mariani of Italy.

The stadium was jammed to its capacity of 90,000 spectators. The weather was extremely warm, and the track, which was rebuilt, was extremely fast.

Giorgio Oberweger of Italy scored something of an upset by winning the discus with 164 feet, 11-3/4 inches. Phil Levy of the San Francisco Olympic club, the favorite, was second with 162 feet, 9-3/4 inches.

William Fenske won the mile in the comparatively slow time of 4:19.4. Wooderson's outdoor record is 4:05.4.

Dennis Peil of Britain was second, three yards behind the Wisconsin.AKE Jansson of Sweden was third and John Alford, Britain, was fourth.

Godfrey Brown of England turned in a British record in winning the quarter mile from a field that included some of the world's best men. Brown went the distance in 47.6 seconds compared to the old record of 48 seconds. William Fritz of Canada, who was second, one yard behind, also lowered the old mark with 47.7.

Santa Ana Elks Plays at Downey

The Elks nightball team will invade Downey tonight for their first start in the recently formed Southern California Elks' lodge league. It was announced today by Darwin Scott team manager. The Downey team is expected to give the Santa Ana nine considerable opposition, mainly because they are more familiar with the league rules, which calls for 10 men on each team (shortstop between first and second base); 12 inch ball and 50 foot bases.

On Thursday night the Santa Ana Lodgement will play the league-leading Diamond Walnut team of Loyola field at the Santa Ana Municipal Bowl in an exhibition contest.

DEE WINS TITLE
DELAFIELD, Wis., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Larry Dee, 17, San Francisco, won the western open juniors tennis championship Sunday by defeating Wally Van Horn, Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4. Van Horn teamed with David Freeman, another Californian, to win the junior doubles title Saturday against Dee and Ted Olewine, Los Angeles, 4-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 8-6.

Don't be surprised if you continue to see improved pitching and a Cub team with fight that one hasn't shown since the days of "from Tinker to Evers to Chance." Jurgas and Billy Herman give the Bruins one of the slickest second basing combinations in the game. Jurgas is the club's fighter, Hartnett its present inspiration.

But it was Jurgas who, before Grimm's removal, provided the real spark of the Cubs' current drive.

And after all it only takes a spark to set off a whole keg of powder.

Robinson, Smith Win Golf Honors

A. W. Robinson and Col. A. W. Smith teamed up Saturday at the Santa Ana Country club to win the weekly sweepstakes, low ball partners against par. They had a combined score of 5 up.

R. A. Emison and C. H. Holles won second honors, being 4 up on par.

The star nearest to the earth is estimated to be 22,000,000,000 miles away.

RECORD CROWDS AT BEACH FESTIVAL

PAGEANT EVENT
WINS APPLAUSE

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 1.—With paid attendance already estimated at over 5000, the current seventh Festival of Arts attracted record crowds over the weekend. Rearrangements of seating facilities by Holmes H. Henshaw of the festival committee has added greatly to the capacity of the grounds.

Sunday's attractions included Grace Hyde Trine, in a series of readings from Browning, Keats, Kipling, and Louis Untermeyer; Madame Nina Koshetz, operatic soprano, assisted by Gabriel Leonoff, tenor, and Vladimir Dubinsky, baritone, in song selections, accompanied by Grace Fitch; the "We Three" trio, presenting the theme song "Laguna," by Cleo Allen Hibbs, and the Laguna Festival dancers, a group of talented local girls directed by Mary F. Cooper.

The Pageant of the Masters, presented every evening, offered several fine reproductions of world-famous paintings, posed by living models directed by Roy M. Ropp. The "Last Supper" tableau, closing the program, was accorded rapt attention and at its close, was given much applause.

The festival will continue until Saturday evening, when the final performance will be offered. Afternoon and evening shows will be given each day.

Liquor Arrests
In Anaheim Drop

ANAHEIM, Aug. 1.—While more arrests were made by Anaheim police during the fiscal year than were made the previous year, the number of drunks and drunk drivers was considerably fewer this year.

Annual report of the police department shows 463 arrests made during 1937-38 against 451 in 1936-37. But there were only 244 drunks and 67 drunk drivers charged while 279 were charged with being intoxicated and 78 were arrested for drunk driving a year ago.

A little of this decrease in the number of drunk drivers may be accounted for this year by the large number of arrests made for traffic violations and for reckless driving. In some cases of reckless driving, the driver was found not to be drinking but could not be termed "drunk." There were seven reckless driving cases and 18 traffic violators this year against one of each last year.

"Woody made it back all right, didn't he?" asked Nikki, a little of her own fearful reaction creeping into her voice.

"I'm sure he did," said Steve truthfully. "He didn't have as far to go as we did and he wasn't wasting any time when I saw him last. We can't signal. Our guns

SERIAL STORY
MYSTERY AT THE LAZY R
BY CLARKE NEWLONCOPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAPT OF CHARACTERS
NIKKI JEROME, heroine; blond, popular, is engaged to six-foot, black-haired
STEVE MALLORY, hero; who is accompanying her on a trip to Nikki's aunt and uncle on a Wyoming dude ranch. Nikki's father, PETER JEROME, is a wealthy New York Jew merchant.

Yesterday: Steve and Nikki are nearly caught in a dangerous landslide. Then a rock hits Nikki. She kneels in pain.

CHAPTER X

STEVE lifted Nikki to her feet. "You go on," she gasped. "I'm a little—little bit slow." Her words were spaced and labored. "Go on. I'll make it." The rain had slackened a little. High up on the cliff a wavering, jagged cut appeared and widened slowly as tons of earth slipped foot by foot from their moorings of centuries.

Steve stooped and in one swift movement tossed Nikki on his shoulder and stumbled forward in heavy, heart-breaking strides. The mud dragged at his feet and a shower of rocks fell in vicious, bruising hail. The rumble behind him became a thundering roar. He threw himself and Nikki around the bend as a huge section of the mountain slid slowly, irresistibly forward, obliterating a quarter of a mile of the trail as completely as though it had never existed.

They lay flat for several minutes, spent, too out of breath to speak. Finally Steve said:

"I'm going back to New York and find something easy—like crossing Times Square at 6 o'clock." He grinned. "Somehow these trails don't seem safe to me."

are somewhere down there." He motioned toward that slide that was settling far below in a haze of dust, despite the rain. Nikki shuddered.

"I suppose Woody lost his gun too," he continued. "I guess we'd better follow this trail on and try to circle back to camp. We certainly can't go back the way we came."

The rain had stopped as suddenly as it began. They were soaked. Mud was caked on their clothes. They mopped off soiled hands and faces with wet grass.

"The sun will dry us out in a few minutes," said Steve, and it did. They walked along the trail and followed its course around the curve of the mountain, but when it continued on, obviously away from camp, Steve suggested they try a cutback along a tiny canyon. So they changed courses and walked until they believed they should be somewhere near the camp. Without guns they could only call. Their shouts echoed back and forth between the hills, but they got no answer. Suddenly both realized it was far past noon and they hadn't eaten. So they sat down and took battered sandwiches from capacious pockets.

"Nothing ever tasted any better," said Nikki, as she took a bite of bread and cold beef. "But I expect we'd better save at least half of it. It's just possible, isn't it, Steve, my dear, that we're lost?"

"Just possible," admitted Steve, his mouth full.

THE possibility became increasingly a probability as the next two hours passed and they found no sign of the camp nor received answers to their shouts. Just before sundown Nikki stopped.

"It gets dark quickly up here, Steve, and it looks like we're going to spend the night out."

"I've been thinking of that," he admitted, "and this seems to be as good a spot as any."

Steve wasn't much of a woodsman but he was enough to lash a branch between two trees with vines, hack down limbs with his hunting knife and make a lean-to that was closed on three sides and open in front. That would protect them from the weather.

He spent an hour gathering wood and piling it within their reach, while Nikki piled twigs and leaves on the ground within the lean-to. That done they built a fire after a few false starts and sat within their little house, watching the flame just as the sun plunged their little valley into dusk and darkness.

"Very cozy," said Nikki.

"And warm," said Steve.

"You know," said Nikki, moving closer, "being lost up here is serious. Of course we're bound to be found in a day or so, though in the meantime we could get pretty hungry. But somehow I can't worry. We're together and it's just fun."

"Right," said Steve, putting his arm around her.

"Tomorrow the sun will rise and we'll find the camp. Tonight we can sit and love the night, the fire and each other."

"I'll be compromised," said Nikki, sleepily. "You'll have to marry me."

"Darn it," said Steve, "but that's all right. I was going to anyway, remember?"

SO the night passed and the sun awakened them the next morning. Steve started to rekindle the fire and then decided there wasn't much point in it. They washed their faces in the little creek and started out. Steve took his bearings by the sun and decided they had been travelling too much to the right, so he altered their course and they struck out directly over the hill at their left.

They were almost at the top of the hill when they heard a shot. They looked at each other in glee. "A shot means man and man means food," said Steve. "Come on."

They hurried on upward and when they reached the top they could see down into the valley below.

"Now to locate that shot—or the shooter," said Steve. They searched through the sparse brush with their eyes and finally Nikki caught a movement and the cried:

"There he is." She pointed and they both watched a figure whose movements were veiled by distance and the brownish growths which matched his clothing. The man stood quietly for a moment, looking carefully about him and then his head rose as he scanned the hills.

Steve took Nikki's arm and pulled her down out of sight behind a bush. He wondered if the man had seen them. Nikki was looking at him in bewilderment.

"Aren't you going to call to him?" Steve was intent on the distant figure.

"Look at the man carefully. Can you tell who it is?"

Nikki stared and then a familiar movement brought that stubby form into recognition.

"Sarto," she breathed. "But he could lead us back to camp couldn't he?"

"He could," said Steve slowly. "But I wonder if he would. . . . He didn't come out here alone, surely."

And then Nikki remembered the shot they had heard.

PRORATE PREDICTED FOR BIG CALIFORNIA WINE GRAPE CROP

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Machinery for the operation of a prorate on a heavy 1938 California wine grape crop will be in working order by August 8, San Joaquin valley grape growers and wine industry leaders predicted today.

Proponents of the prorate said its, representing two-thirds of the vineyard acreage, approved the prorate, it will be inaugurated and a $7,000,000 wine industry loan pledged by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and California banks will be made available.

A program committee to govern the prorate will be selected by the commission at its San Francisco meeting, Loeschner said. Six members will be named from among 18 grower nominees. Three will be winery representatives.

MOTHER OF DOOMED MEN HITCHHIKES TO GAIN FDR CLEMENCY

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 1.—(UP)—Horace F. Frye, Sacramento attorney for John and Coke Brite, Siskiyou county slayers, today expressed concern for Mrs. Archie Brite, mother of the men, when he learned she was hitchhiking to Washington.

"Ma" Brite left Salt Lake City, Utah, over the weekend and announced she was seeking presidential clemency for her sons. She left her auto camp home at Folsom, near the prison where her sons are in death row, about 10 days ago without indicating her destination.

Out of U. S. Jurisdiction
Frye said he feared her mind may have become unbalanced because of the strain of the court trials, appeals to Gov. Frank R. Merriam and the series of reprieves granted to the men.

"There is nothing she can do in Washington for the case is strictly a state matter and out of the jurisdiction of the federal government," Frye said. "She is only wearing herself out hitchhiking that way." Mrs. Brite hitchhiked to Arizona several months ago in a similar quest for evidence to free her sons. The case is now before the advisory pardon board after Governor Merriam granted a new reprieve until Sept. 23. The state supreme court has recommended that he commute their death sentences to life imprisonment.

The Brite brothers were convicted of slaying three men during a fight. They claimed self defense in resisting arrest.

MISS MATTHIAS WEDS L. A. MAN

ORANGE, Aug. 1.—In the soft glow furnished by 40 gleaming candles at the altar of Immanuel Lutheran church Saturday evening, Miss Norma Louise Matthias, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Matthias, 135 North Shaffer street, became the bride of Wilbur Lee Mitchell, son of Leroy Mitchell, of Los Angeles. The impressive service was read by the Rev. Hugo Gihrig, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A white and yellow color theme was emphasized in the decorations for the church, white larkspur being combined with yellow dahlias in a profusion of bloom at the altar and in the choir recess.

Use New Chimes
The recently installed chimes were used for the first time at a wedding at Immanuel church when Harold Dittmer played selections having bridal themes. Mrs. Emil Wagner sang "Because" and "O Perfect Love."

White mousseline de soie, with a lace edged veil which was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls, was Miss Matthias' wedding gown. Lilies of the valley and bouquet made up her bouquet, from which fell a shower of tiny white flowers. Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Duker. She

Jimmie
Fidler
in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, August 1.—Idol Chatter: Bing Crosby ought to be able to sing "Trees" with real feeling—he has paid a tree surgeon $2000 to save the life of one giant oak on his estate. Bet those "Dead End" kids live to rue their reputation for toughness—they just aren't big enough to defend it. Dorothy Lamour must enjoy her exotic roles—she dresses that way off-screen too. Clark Gable's breakfast order—grapefruit, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee—never varies.

Ruby Keeler should wear glasses and would—if they were not so unglamorous. The R. Y. Martin who is running for Congress in Tennessee, is Major Weaver's uncle. Today's philosophy—by Edgar Bergen: "Too many girls in this business are getting flowers when they would prefer groceries." Amazing thing about Alan Hale's inventions is that some of them actually work.

A few more performances like the one she turns in in "Mother Carey's Chickens" and Fay Bainter will be the screen's No. 1 character actress. Seems that Nelson Eddy's fan clubs have formally declared war against every writer who takes a crack at their idol—I'd better watch my step. Cited for the Croix de Merite: Producer Harry Cohn—whose secretary reads scripts to him while he is in the dentist's chair. John Carradine always reminds me of Cassius in "Julius Caesar"—he hath a lean and hungry look."

At the Balboa yacht basin yesterday, I encountered Johnny "Scat" Davis and heard the sad story of his great, but thwarted, ambition. Johnny wants a sailing boat—wants one so badly that he spends his week-ends on the waterfront appraising the sleek craft as they slide by. But watching is his limit. Some weeks ago, with two companions, he and Mrs. Davis chartered a forty-two foot yawl and put out to sea for a ten day cruise. And just beyond the harbor breakwater, Johnny's woes began. If he stayed on deck, his florid face blistered—if he went below to escape the sun, he immediately became deathly sea-sick. They came in at the end of the second day—to rush Johnny to a doctor.

Speaking of boats, I'm reminded of the catastrophe that befell Director Archie Mayo the other day, while directing a canoeing sequence for "Youth Takes a Fling." A large had been installed on Paramount's biggest stage and Archie was paddling about in a rowboat, the better to supervise his cast. "Turn on the moon," he ordered. "Turn on the wind—just a gentle breeze. Turn on the waves now... all set... camera!... ACTION!" And with that he made an expansive gesture, cupped the boat and tumbled into the water. He waded sputtering with rage, to the bank—while everyone on the set tried, heroically, to keep a straight face. Finally the cameraman, unable to stand the strain, gasped: "Mr. Mayo, you forgot to have us turn off the law of gravity!"

Great excitement on the "Campus Confessions" set, where an overhead arc light had been placed too close to an automatic sprinkler. The heat turned on the sprinkler and the fire alarms, and five minutes later all the fire trucks in Filmmville roared through the studio gates. Even after discovering that it was a false alarm, the firemen lingered to stare curiously at the stars who had assembled from all parts of the lot. One battalion chief had the courage to request, and get, Betty Grable's autograph. "Sorry you were called out for nothing," she remarked as she signed. "Nothing?" he parried gallantly, eyeing her scantily-clad beauty. "Miss, you're too modest!"

If Stu Erwin's Japanese gardener reads this, he can come back to work, for all has been forgiven. Some weeks ago, Stu informs me, his gardener started giving him tips on the races. Invariably, Stu disregarded them—and invariably they proved correct. Summing up the man's record on the last day of the racing meet, Stu decided to plunge. He wagered his "roll" on a long-shot recommended by the Jap—and the horse finished a bad last. Stu didn't mind losing the money but he hates to lose a good gardener. The Jap hasn't been seen since.

Joe Miller's Joke Book, published in 1729, is the world's oldest collection of gags and wit—and when one actor accused another of using it, he has given the slur supreme. The other day Bing Crosby, pursuing a friendly feud with Bob Hope, mailed him an ancient, dog-eared copy of the famous classic. But the laugh is on Mr. Crosby. Bob, an amateur book collector, recognized the intended insult as an authentic first edition. It's worth $500!

COLLECTS $619,042 'UNSECURED' TAXSLEEPER CITES BOOST IN LEVY

Higher tax rates established by tax-fixing boards in the county brought an increase of $155,435 in the tax levy on unsecured personal property, according to County Assessor James Sleeper whose collection of that class of taxes amounted to $619,042 this year, it was announced today. The 1937 total was $463,607.

Since the 1933 tax rate has not yet been fixed, the 1938 collection of unsecured personal property taxes is based upon the rate for the preceding year, it was explained. Unsecured personal property is that owned by persons who have no real estate subject to taxation.

$15,864,757 Since 1912
In cases of persons owning real estate, their personal property tax is billed with their real estate tax, and collected by the tax collector instead of the assessor.

This year's collection makes a total of $15,864,757 in taxes on unsecured personal property collected by Sleeper since he became assessor in 1912. In connection with the announcement of the total, Sleeper made the observation that "A great deal of the money is handled by outside deputies, and I have never had to dismiss a deputy for any shortage whatsoever. This is a record of which any assessor can be proud.

Practical Experience
In 27½ years as assessor, I have had to dismiss only four deputies for inefficiency," he added.

Sleeper indicated that he placed value upon experience in public service. "In all these years, I have had only three chief deputies, the present one now serving his 18th year," he said. "My office deputy is now serving her 28th year; the other deputies and assistants having been in service from one to 17 years. Practical experience is one of the greatest needs in the assessor's office."

POSTAL GAINS RAISED AGAIN

Postal receipts for the first seven months of the year show a gain of approximately $1,000 over $12,556, the total gain over the entire year of 1937, according to a check of postal department records today.

Postmaster Frank Harwood today announced that total receipts for the month of July, 1938, were $16,753.53, an increase of 11 per cent over July of last year when the total stood at $15,033.69.

Total for the first seven months of this year aggregated $113,973.23 as compared with $100,446.57 during a similar period in 1937. Net gain for the first seven months was $13,526.66.

Weaves In Road
Harold Qualls, 22, El Toro, was nabbed in Huntington Beach township, First street and Harbor boulevard, yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Ezra Stanley and A. R. Mills who reported he was driving from side to side of the road. He was pronounced "very drunk." Mike Pena, 35, Irvine, arrested at Fourth and Garfield by Officers L. C. Rogers and Herman Stahl of Santa Ana yesterday afternoon, also was pronounced "very drunk" and booked on drunk driving charge.

Election Decides
—Exactly Nothing

Three of the nine grape growers in Orange county served on the election board at last weekend's proration election in this county, and got one customer during the days' balloting.

The fourth grape grower came in about 11 a. m. and added his vote to those of the three who served on the election board, at Garden Grove grammar school.

When the four votes were counted, it was found that they stood 2 to 2, so the election in Orange county decided—exactly nothing.

Our Children

GOING TO MARKET

"Here's the vegetables, Mom. I got some fine peas for ten cents a pound. They're selling for fifteen on the stands but I went to the market and Tony gave me three pounds good measure for a quarter because I took four bunches of carrots with them. Good business?"

"Great. I don't know what I'd do without you, Carl, I'm sure, I'd have to pay whatever they asked at the stand and lose the money you save. It counts up, doesn't it?"

"Does it? I should say. My account is getting fat. Could you put up a bushel of tomatoes this afternoon if I helped you, Mom? Sam told me that I could pick out a bushel of good ones from what he has left, if I wanted them, for thirty five cents. They're more than twice that in the stores."

"Maybe we could. I'll do my best. You get the tomatoes and we'll get the jars ready. It would be great to get sixteen quarts done at that price. Let's go."

Carl raced away and mother began hustling the dishes into the pan and out again. Grandmother took the towel and polished hard and fast. By and by she asked, "How is it Carl is doing the marketing and is so smart about it, and so keen? I never knew a child to be like that!"

"It's not ordinary. It's a bit of a secret but you can know. Carl began pilfering out of my pocket book. I discovered that he wanted to buy things. Made him feel big, I imagine. I was desperately frightened and racked my brain to find a way to cure him. I took him with me to market, let him carry the money in his purse in his pocket. As soon as I could, I let him do the selecting as well as the paying. He took to it like a duck to water. Now he buys all the vegetables, keeps the accounts and all. We divide what he saves over the market price, fifty-fifty. He can be trusted with any amount of money and is never short a cent."

Many of the mistakes that children make about the use of money are caused by ignorance. They have no idea of the value of money, nor of where it comes from, nor of where it goes, nor why. If they could know, they would not make anything like as many mistakes. Many people keep the financial position of the family a dead secret from the children. Some of this is necessary but then, too some knowledge of the family concern is essential to the intelligent behavior of the children in relation to the budget.

We don't begin to teach the meaning and use of money until it is too late. The children have formed mistaken ideas about it and have acted upon them so that they have acquired wrong habits. I heard an intelligent boy say, when his mother said there was no money for something he wanted, "Just ask father to write some out of his book." He was ten years old and thought money was written out of a check book. What would he be doing with money when he was sixteen? Train little children to use money. As they grow, give them more experience. Pilfering is caused by ignorance often than not.

Autumn Bridal Date Revealed At Formal Tea

That mid-September will bring the wedding of Miss Lou Ella Pierce and Jack Schilling, was interesting information given yesterday afternoon when Miss Pierce joined her mother, Mrs. J. W. Pierce, in entertaining at tea in their home, 1037 Orange avenue.

Because of the nature of the tea, it was appropriate that Mr. Schilling's mother and sister, Mrs. Robert B. Schilling and Mrs. Lee Haezler (Rosalia Schilling) should assist in receiving guests as well as another daughter of the home, Miss Clara Mae Pierce. All of them wore flowers provided by Mr. Schilling, who chose Tallismania roses for his fiancée to wear with her pretty afternoon frock, and gardenias for the others in the receiving line.

Quite lovely flowers, including dahlias, marigolds and galliards, were arranged about the home, but dominating the scene was the table where pink, green and white were mingled in a charming color harmony. Pink scabiosa, massed in a low green bowl with graceful tiny figurines, provided a charming centerpiece. The centerpieces of the silver tea urns at different intervals were Mrs. Stacey Nicholas of Los Angeles, Mrs. Simeon Toelle of Fullerton; Mrs. W. W. Pierce of Southgate, and Mrs. Harold Finley of this city.

Mrs. C. R. Pierce served as dining room hostess. As guests were served tea and made their selection from the trays and comports of dainties ranged on the pretty table, they were handed parchment scrolls, tied with pink and green ribbons. These scrolls linked the names of Miss Pierce and Mr. Schilling, with the date of September 14, selected for their marriage.

More than half a hundred friends were thus apprised of the nuptials, and included those from this city, from Huntington Park, where the Pierces formerly lived, and from Los Angeles and various points in the country.

The affianced young people have both been prominent in Santa Ana Junior college, where Miss Pierce was affiliated with the Spinsters, and served as secretary of the Student association, continuing the prominence achieved during her high school years in Huntington Park. She was vice-president of her high school student body, and active in all campus and scholastic affairs, including the Phoenix club, honor society of the Los Angeles school system.

Mr. Schilling is associated with his father in the Schilling Shoe company.

Visitors From East Feted at Park Dinner

Santiago Park was rendezvous for a family group last night when Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huntington and daughters, the Misses Ruth and Norma Huntington of Pendleton, Ind., were incentive for a get-together.

Picnic dinner was served just at dusk, with the merry group assembled around one of the long tables in the shadows of the eucalyptus trees.

In the party with the tourists from Indiana were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Wool, in whose home they were visiting; Mrs. J. F. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Swain, the Misses Lucille and Virginia Swain, Mrs. N. E. Watson, Richard Watson, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Davis and son, Monte, Mr. and Mrs. William Fritcher, Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Vian, Miss Ruth Cartmel, Miss Blanche Cartmel.

The same group assembled late last week at the Fritcher home, 1312 South Flower street for a covered dish dinner. Completing the party on that occasion were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Tournat, George Vian, Miss Carmelle Swain.

During their visit in the Southland, the Huntingtons have been motoring to various scenic spots, with San Diego as their destination today. In addition they enjoyed a day on Catalina Island. They plan to leave this week for a leisurely motor trip to their home in Indiana.

Merrymakers Spend Evening Picnicking

Throughout the year Merrymakers club members have monthly dinner parties of more or less formal nature, so when the group assembled late last week at Coronado del Mar it was for an informal picnic which included children of members as guests.

Planned by the Orlo Household, the Worth Alexanders and Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Meairs, the party began early in the afternoon as some of the group arrived at the beach for swimming. A wiener roast came as a highlight of the evening for children and grown-ups as well.

Sharing the event were Mr. and Mrs. Meairs and children, Betty Pearl and Ruth, of Midway City; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth King and sons, Tommy and Dick, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Earl McBay and son, Bob; Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Household and children, Betty and Bobbie; Mr. and Mrs. Worth Alexander and children, Jimmie, Raymond and Marjorie; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Tournat, the Harold Moomaws and sons, Dick and Don; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Korff and son, Dick and a special guest, little Miss Claudia Carey.

BRIDGE CLUB GREETED

Dahlias in various bright hues lent charm to the Roland Flaherty home, 702 South Broadway, where Miss Dorothy Flaherty last week received members of her bridge club. The afternoon round of games was followed by the serving of a covered course for which tables were prettily flower decked.

Enjoying the afternoon with the hostess were the Misses Ellen Neal, Paula Pervis, Dolly Davis, Ruth DeGunter, Cecelia Telef, Elizabeth Wimbler and Mrs. Norman Wycoff (Mary Jane Welder). Two members, the Misses Lorraine Tarbox and Chelena McBurney, were unable to attend.

Miss Jessee's Wedding Plans Told At Party

Choosing mid-summer as the time to announce plans for her early winter wedding to Clarence Ray Hedrick of Fresno, Miss Dorothy Jessee entertained at a buffet supper Saturday night in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jessee, 821 South Garvey street.

News of the betrothal was told early in the evening during the serving of the dessert course which gave such an interesting touch to the supper itself. Served with the heart-centered ice cream moulds were individual cakes with wedding bells and the names of the engaged pair inscribed on the frosting. Miss Jessee displayed her pretty diamond engagement ring.

For the party, the home was brightened with vari-hued pinwheels, with an especially lovely bouquet of the jewel-toned blossoms on the diningroom table.

Chinese checkers were played later in the evening, at the close of which prizes were awarded to Miss Leone Baxter and Morris Dreizen.

In the group with Miss Jessee and Mr. Hedrick were Miss Leone Baxter, Irma Baxter Owen, Miss Lucille Swain, Miss Carmelle Swain, the Messrs. William Kennedy, Morris Dreizen, Samuel Dreizen, Theodore Jessee and Mr. and Mrs. Theo Abel of Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. Abel entertained Sunday night with a dinner party in honor of the betrothed couple.

Miss Jessee, who attended Santa Ana high school and junior college, completed her college work at University of California at Los Angeles. She is a member of the faculty at Edison school. Delta Theta Chi sorority and Wrycende Macedonia club are two of the affiliations, her fiancé has his schooling in Los Angeles.

Mixing Bowl BY ANN MEREDITH

The road to predilection is said to be paved with good intentions. We know that it is good intention deferred that puts women—analyze the situation and you will find that appetite says "feed me quick" and you obey by taking a nose dive into the bread box (one of the spots you must approach with reasonable care when you weigh too much), when a green salad should appease appetite.

One woman has worked out a system of always having salad materials ready for meals; the system is right up the reducer's alley.

"This is an economical and quick way of solving the summer salad problem: grate one head of white cabbage, one head of red cabbage, and one bunch of carrots, separately, and store in individual refrigerator pans (covered). When a quick salad is needed, take what is required of each vegetable, dress with tart French dressing and serve on crisp lettuce. The grated red cabbage combines well with left over green peas, and the chopped dill pickle and regular mayonnaise. Another combination uses a lettuce, grated carrot tossed with torn lettuce, grated green pepper and quartered tomatoes."

After reading how easy it is to have diet salads always ready, I expect you'll want a copy of the "Eat and Grow Slim" menu. Write for it now? Nothing to do but the stamped, return addressed envelope.

Informal Dinner Party Followed by Dancing At San Clemente

Here for a short visit at the end of the week with Miss Ruth Rowland, 325 Sixth street, Tustin, the Misses Mary Alice Liken and Elizabeth Richardson of Springfield, Mo., were complimented by their hosts with a prettily appointed dinner party Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCarty of Eugene, Ore., and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Stephenson Jr. completed the lively group. It was the final one of a series of intimate parties enjoyed by the McCartys on their Southland visit. They left Saturday morning for the north.

Record remodeling operations in Miss Rowland's home were of much interest to the guests. After a leisurely dinner hour the group motored to San Clemente for dancing. The Missouri guests are making their headquarters over in Long Beach.

Bible Class Members Entertained at Beach

Adding to the enjoyment of a picnic dinner which members of the first Presbyterian church shared Saturday was the beauty of the party setting afforded by the Balboa Island home of Senator and Mrs. Harry Westover.

Mr. Westover, teacher of the class, invited the group to come early in the afternoon to share the pleasures of the island. The gardens of the Westover home are so lovely, that guests were reluctant to wander far from the grounds which offered such welcome hospitality. However, many of the group did stroll through the island village.

Picnic dinner was served in the gardens while guests were seated at the tile-topped tables which are features of the outdoor furnishings.

Special guests were the host's parents, Judge and Mrs. J. H. Westover of Yuma, Ariz. The pastor of the church, the Rev. O. Scott McFarland and the Rev. O. Farland, and Whitford L. Hall, minister of music, were among the 35 guests present.

Guests were happy to learn that Harry Westover Jr., son of the home, is recuperating nicely from his illness.

In planning a celebration of the birthday anniversary of their young daughter, Miss Eugenia Bond, the Rufus G. Bonds, 517 South Ross street, decided upon a modern version of the old-fashioned hay ride, completed a picnic supper in Irvine park.

This happy affair took place Saturday evening, and a group of Miss Eugenia's classmates at Julia Lathrop Junior High school, shared the gay outing. With Mr. Bond as driver, the party was taken by motor truck to the park, where Mrs. Bond had everything in readiness to serve the supper.

Record remodeling operations in Miss Rowland's home were of much interest to the guests. After a leisurely dinner hour the group motored to San Clemente for dancing. The Missouri guests are making their headquarters over in Long Beach.

On the party with Mr. and Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Murphy, were the birthday honoree, Miss Eugenia Bond, the Misses Beverly Short, Barbara Brisco, Glenna Jeanne Titchenal, Betty Jean Koster, Charmean Carlson, Anita Wasson, Ruth Murphy, Jean Turner, together with Richard Roehm, Harvey Riggall, Bill Gulley, Kenneth Lindahl, Edwin Robinson, Sidney Weehunt, Forrest Menzie, Eugene Frisbo, Harold Root of Fullerton and Ben Tannell.

Mrs. J. N. Buckwalter, who will leave a week from today for an extended visit in her former home community of Sterling, Ill., was showered with handkerchiefs Friday afternoon during a meeting of Carpenters Auxiliary in her home, 1227 Highland street.

There were other special features to add to the enjoyment of the event, which began with the serving of covered dish luncheon. Purple and orchid asters lighted by white candles formed a dining table centerpiece. With the dessert course was served a candle-lit cake in celebration of the birthday of Mrs. Amy Billingsley.

Members spent the greater part of the afternoon doing fancy work. In the group were Mesdames Melvina Titchenal and son Ralph, Bel Lambert, Ollie Minor, Zana Lonon, Edna Rosenbaum, Betty Rupert, Fern Berner, Agnes Schroth, Esther Crabtree, Bertha Boland, Helen Wright and daughter, Joy, and the hostess, Mrs. Buckwalter.

Party Honors Are Extended To Newlyweds

One gay party after another has complimented two of the city's prominent brides of early summer, Mrs. Leonard Dorn (Jeanne Leive) and Mrs. Merwin Carman (Ethel Richardson), but late last week when Miss Mildred Rohrs of Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hall entertained at a post-nuptial supper party, it was in compliment to both Mr. and Mrs. Dorn and Mr. and Mrs. Carman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rohrs of Orange have just completed a delightful summer home down at Newport, and it was there that their daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Hall staged their hospitality. For the supper hour itself, they arranged a flower-garlanded table on the wide stretch of sand in front of the home.

Covers were laid for the host trio and for their honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Carman and Mr. and Mrs. Dorn, and for Mr. and Mrs. John Rohrs, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kemmerer and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richardson, Miss Helen Rohrs and Clarence Rohrs, Orange; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lieve, Mr. and Mrs. Mildred Carman, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Trevorow, Mr. and Mrs. William Comito, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Bauer, Santa Ana.

Later evening hours were spent within the home, and offered among features of entertainment, a surprise to the honor guests. For their friends had banded together to present them with gifts, an electric clock for Mr. and Mrs. Dorn, and a special card table for Mr. and Mrs. Carman.

Our Children

GOING TO MARKET
"Here's the vegetables, Mom. I got some fine peas for ten cents a pound. They're selling for fifteen on the stands but I went to the market and Tony gave me three pounds good measure for a quarter because I took four bunches of carrots with them. Good business?"
"Great. I don't know what I'd do without you, Carl, I'm sure. I'd have to pay whatever they asked at the stand and lose the money you save. It counts up, doesn't it?"

"Does it? I should say. My account is getting fat. Could you put up a bushel of tomatoes this afternoon if I helped you, Mom? Sam told me that I could pick out a bushel of good ones from what he has left, if I wanted them, for thirty-five cents. They're more than twice that in the stores."

"Maybe we could. I'll do my best. You get the tomatoes and we'll get the jars ready. It would be great to get sixteen quarts done at that price. Let's go."
Carl raced away and mother began hustling the dishes into the pan and out again. Grandmother took the towel and polished hard and fast. By and by she asked, "How is it Carl is doing the marketing and is so smart about it, and so keen? I never knew a child to be like that."

"It's not ordinary. It's a bit of a secret but you can know. Carl began pilfering out of my pocket book. I discovered that he wanted to buy things. Made him feel big, I imagine. I was desperately frightened and racked my brain to find a way to cure him. I took him with me to market, let him carry the money in his purse in his pocket. As soon as I could, I let him do the selecting as well as the paying. He took to it like a duck to water. Now he buys all the vegetables, keeps the accounts and all. We divide what he saves over the market price, fifty-fifty. He can be trusted with any amount of money and is never short a cent."

Many of the mistakes that children make about the use of money are caused by ignorance. They have no idea of the value of money, nor of where it comes from, nor of where it goes, nor why. If they could know, they would not make anything like as many mistakes. Many people keep the financial position of the family a dead secret from the children. Some of this is necessary but then, too some knowledge of the family concern is essential to the intelligent behavior of the children in relation to the budget.
We don't begin to teach the meaning and use of money until it is too late. The children have formed mistaken ideas about it and have acted upon them so that they have acquired wrong habits. I heard an intelligent boy say, when his mother said there was no money for something he wanted. "Just ask father to write some out of his book." He was ten years old and thought money was written out of a check book. What would he be doing with money when he was sixteen?

Train little children to use money. As they grow, give them more experience. Pilfering is caused by ignorance often than not.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "Poor Readers," in which he gives parents many suggestions on how to help children to improve their reading. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

DRIVE CAREFULLY -SAVE A LIFE-

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Recollections of the matchless social grace of the Duke of Windsor have given rise to a general tendency to regard the public performances of King George sometimes with more tolerance than awe.

But the King and Queen went to Paris the other day, where grace is one of life's ends, and it looks as if their majesties took all the honors.

One day's program included: a public ceremony about breakfast time; a water procession up the Seine; a speech at City Hall, in French; ceremonies at the British embassy; a tour of the Louvre; a trip to the suburbs, with ceremonies; a garden party; a dinner, with speeches; the opera; a presentation and a concluding public appearance.

The King changed uniforms every time he turned around. Reports are that his dress was flawless, his speeches flowed like water, he was cheerful, charming, self-possessed from 9 a. m. to midnight.

As a king, George is doing all right.

MINORITIES: GODSENDS

What's your reaction to most minority groups in this country? Do you bridle at the very thought of them? Or is it your habit to muster a fatherly smile, concentrate on the Bill of Rights, and allow yourself the self-satisfaction of regarding them as poor unfortunates who ought to be charitably dealt with?

Did you ever think of giving heartfelt thanks for their existence?

A prominent educator made a few observations on minorities the other day, and they're worth a little thought. He submitted that vigorous and active minorities are vitally necessary to every nation's social strength. He remarked in effect that the nation which is not stirred by frequent debate is very apt to drift gently off to sleep. The only man who "has anything to contribute to us," he observed, "is the one who differs from us."

Which is worth pasting in your hat and eyeing from time to time, especially during these sleepy afternoons. And it might help keep you awake, too—and intensify your gratitude—to consider the fact that you and every other man on this earth are likely in the minority on at least one issue.

THE MILLS OF MAN GRIND SLOW

It begins to look as if the American people were at last beginning to learn the facts of life, or of death, in connection with their automobile traffic.

For one reason or another, the traffic toll at last is declining. The decline already is great enough to be noticeable; if continued throughout the year at the present rate, it will mean the saving of some five or six thousand lives.

So far, the safety experts aren't quite sure what has caused it. The consensus seems to be that it has no one cause, but is the product of a great number of things; better police work, the construction of safer highways, the cumulative effects of many years of safety education, and so on.

But in any case, the decline is taking place, and it is one of the most welcome bits of news imaginable.

That shadowy "future generation" we like to refer our parent problems to undoubtedly will have a terrible time understanding why we ever put up with our traffic toll so long. The thing was killing more than 30,000 persons a year, as regular as clockwork, and injuring perhaps ten times that many. It made the casualty lists of most of the battles the American army has participated in look small. It was like a pestilence which people lived with, and callously accepted, simply because they couldn't do anything else.

How will the inhabitants of a saner world ever understand that? It will look as strange and as incomprehensible to them as our way of putting up with aerial bombings, armament races and wars, and our habit of settling industrial disputes with gun and club.

But the corner at last is being turned; which, probably, simply indicates that we do learn things if we are given enough time. The traffic problem isn't insoluble; we are beginning to awaken to that fact, and to do the things which will enable us to travel about the highways without breaking our collective necks in wholesale lots.

There is no natural law condemning the human race to endless wars, industrial battles, and periodic depressions.

Those things exist because it takes us a long time to learn; and because we seem bound to do our learning the hard way, by getting wisdom beaten into our heads.

But we do learn—eventually. It takes us a long time, and we get bumped plentifully along the way; but in the end we get there.

News Behind the News

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. — Mr. Wallace, the agricultural planner, is all mixed up in it again. This time it's corn.

The agriculture secretary has planned farm economics in the face of droughts, grasshoppers, and the Republicans, but it seems to get worse as it goes along. And probably the worst of all the pests is corn.

Here is Wallace now faced with a corn crop so good that he seems legally required (under the law he helped to write) to hold a referendum proposing corn quotas. But the farm journal polls indicate more than one-third of the corn farmers have planned what they wanted and will vote against quotas, thus preventing the necessary two-thirds majority for adoption.

When in doubt before Mr. Wallace has occasionally depended on Joseph, who did a pretty good job of economic planning for one of the pre-New Deal pharaohs. But Joseph did not have a congressional election coming on. Under the law, the corn referendum would have to be held shortly after Sept. 1 just 60 days before congressional voters go to the polls.

An administration defeat by corn farmers just as the election campaign is getting warm is one thing which cannot be permitted to happen, as all good planners will agree, probably including Joseph, who in Mr. Wallace's estimation was apparently a registered Democrat.

He switched over, as Mr. Wallace did later, when the straight Egyptian deal started.

To say Mr. Wallace and his associate planners are at their wits end would not be accurate. They have one very good wit now working and if it does not turn the trick, there will undoubtedly be others. For the present they plan to duck the referendum this way: The agricultural act of last session said Wallace must proclaim a referendum not later than August 15, and must hold it within 20 days thereafter, whenever he expected the normal supply of corn would be exceeded by more than 10 per cent.

If this were all it would be easy. Mr. Wallace could merely refrain from expecting anything abnormal in corn until after election, as Mr. Roosevelt avoided the consequences of the neutrality act by neglecting to note the undeclared war in China. However, this farm law specifically defined a normal supply. It said that normality in corn is the average production of the 10 preceding years, plus 7 per cent allowance for normal carry-over, plus exports, whether normal or not.

The AAA figured it out and announced in March that this would add up to a grand normal of 2,773 million bushels of corn for this year. The farmers could grow that much without fear of referendum or quota.

That was all right until the last crop estimate put corn production at 2,482 millions bushels. Adding everything else up, the AAA's found the prospective supply for this year was 2,882 millions bushels, which was about 192 million bushels Republican.

This would make a referendum automatic unless Mr. Wallace could get a recount. So far he has obtained sort of a yes-and-no one, which may do the job if the corn borer will only get to work and help him.

V. Wells, economist in the AAA planning division, turned up with a new normal in the July issue of "the agricultural situation" issued a few days back. He hoisted corn normality to 2,825 millions bushels. This is still Republican by 57 million bushels according to the last crop report computation. But the understanding around AAA is that if it comes to be only a question of a few (57) million bushels, they will decide in their own favor on the corn referendum matter by not having one, let anyone howl who will.

Worst of it, the goddess of growing things is at it again. Ceres is aiding corn. The borer must be asleep. If this new crop report goes higher than the last one, Mr. Wallace will simply have to find a third new normal some way or another.

This may not be easy. Mr. Wells changed normal, according to the official explanation, because exports of corn have been running higher this year. The October 1937 to June 1938 figure on exports is 103,243,490 bushels compared with 110,584 for the same period of the year previous. This was not fully taken into consideration in the March normal, they say, although 34 million bushels of the 103 millions increase had actually occurred by then.

Normal was officially fattened another way between March and July by recomputing "the trend of corn consumption," that is by guessing how much the pigs would eat by October 1. It seems the new law permitted this in a phrase tacked on the end of the "normal supply" provision, providing that the fixed figure was to be "adjusted for current trends in consumption." However, the opportunities of these two excuses are practically exhausted, and still corn grows.

Note—The dictionary definition of normal is "not deviating from an established norm," but of course, Webster never had to plan farm economics in a campaign year.

THE WORST INFECTION MENACE OF SWIMMING POOLS IS RINGWORM

It is almost impossible for anyone to swim in a river, a lake, or a pool, without getting a certain amount of the water into the mouth and swallowing it. If the water is grossly contaminated with the germs of typhoid, paratyphoid, the colon bacillus, or dysentery organisms there is great danger that these may get up an infection in the bowl.

As long as waste from industrial plants or from houses may enter a pool, the chance of such gross contamination is present. There is also the chance of contamination of the water from the bodies of people who swim and who do not take a good cleansing bath before entering the pool.

The disinfectant which is used in swimming pools does much to destroy such organisms, but when there is much carelessness, a large dose of germs may pass very promptly from the body of one person to another.

The worst menace in the way of infection of the skin from a swimming pool is the famous ringworm.

The mold or fungus which causes ringworm is much more difficult to destroy than an ordinary germ. It may be destroyed on the floors of bathtubs and on the runways around pools by the use of strong germicidal solutions. Ringworm is destroyed also by boiling, as other germs are destroyed by boiling. But very frequently, particularly when there are large crowds using a pool or a beach, there is hardly time for actual boiling of towels or bathing suits, and careless handling results in transmission of infection.

The ordinary pus-forming germs may also be occasionally transferred in this way, as well as the infection of the eye that causes pink eye. It is important therefore for safety that every one use his own towels and see to it that they are properly cared for at home.

It is important also that all of the measures for avoiding ringworm of the feet are put into effect, including footbaths which contain suitable drugs that have new become regular equipment in most well-regulated swimming pools.

The danger of spreading venereal diseases in swimming pools is relatively slight. The germs which cause venereal disease are not likely to be spread by the water.

THE MONOPOLY INQUIRY

BY WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University

The proposed investigation of monopolies by a joint administration-congressional committee and six government agencies offers promise of being an epoch-making event in this country. The important question is, What is the real purpose of this far-flung investigation? Is it to obtain facts for the purpose of devising improved methods of regulating monopolies, where they are found to exist, or is it a fact-finding expedition—or something else—which is to prepare the way for a very radical change in the relationship between government and business?

When one follows closely the various bills introduced in congress the line of thought of many congressmen, and the philosophies and acts of administration advisers and "economists," there is ample room to wonder if the way is being prepared, not for sensible regulation of undesirable monopolistic practices, but for something like a revolution in the relationship between government and business.

There are many congressmen with ideas—vague ideas, lots of prejudices, and little understanding of economics—who wish to do things to our economic system, and should some of these typical "reformers" have their way, then may heaven help the United States! I have before a bill, called the "Industrial Expansion Act," introduced by Representative Voorhis of California on June 1, 1937. I have seen several bills of this general type introduced in congress, and they seem to represent a trend of thought these days. It is not healthy for the simple reason that it reveals a muddled-headedness regarding economic facts, principles and processes. The Voorhis bill, as an example, attempts the impossible, and would lead straight to the most insane type of economic dictatorship by government with chaos and revolution as the almost certain result. If the proposed investigation into monopolies is a part of this sort of a picture, and is to prepare the way for these wild boys with vim and push, but with little understanding of the machine which they propose to "fix," then this country is about to face an extremely serious situation. Furthermore the procedure itself, if not well managed, may so disturb business that a recovery may be arrested or another recession precipitated.

Senator O'Mahoney, speaking for a group of representatives of the various agencies which are to conduct this far-flung investigation, assures the public that this is going to be an objective study "to be approached from a broad economic point," and that the purpose of the committee "is not to pillory any industry or group, but to draw a broad picture of how an American industry operates." That is an encouraging statement, and it is also encouraging to find such men as Senator O'Mahoney and Representative Hutton Summers on the committee. Senator O'Mahoney goes on to say: "The purpose of this investigation is to formulate a broad policy of the administration toward business."

What, precisely, does this last statement mean? It can mean anything—something commendable or something sinister. The fact is that the public is in the dark as to what this undertaking is all about. An investigation into facts, from which lessons and principles are reduced by competent, objective economists, could and should be a desirable undertaking. But as matters stand at the moment, there is no way to appraise this project with any assurance. Certainly the step is being taken against a back-lash ground and in an atmosphere of a type that would suggest that the public should keep its eyes open.

In Economics, free and fair competition is regarded as one of the necessary attributes of a healthy economic system, and this calls for the regulation of monopolies. But let the public not forget that monopoly requires careful definition. So does free and fair competition. Monopoly must not be confused with bigness; some of the sharpest competition is among the largest concerns. Steady or uniform prices may not reveal monopoly; free competition may give uniform prices. Monopoly is a matter of degree; so is competition. Furthermore, the freest of competition in some instances leads to cut-throat practices and to the destruction of the competitors, or to devices to save themselves. Nor is competition a simple thing to conceive; it may reach in various directions—it may operate between producers, between purchasers, between producer and purchaser, between one product and a substitute, between a commodity and a person, and so on.

Dipping into these problems of monopoly is not task for immature, half-baked experimenters. It is a job for the most experienced, most objective, most reputable, and most clear-headed economists this country can produce. Thus far, and in general, this class of economists is not part of the picture; they are outside. This aspect of the project should make the country nervous.

General Hugh S.

JOHNSON SAYS

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—The tax element in the cost of articles of common consumption—shirts, furniture, bread, beer, automobiles—is already 20 per cent of the retail price. It is bound to increase as spending continues and debts and deficits rise.

In many important lines of manufacture the tax payments are greater than the dividend payments, and in some they approach the amount of money paid to direct labor.

Much of the tax element in cost is different from the labor or profit element. A company can run without profits for years. When times are bad and business declines, labor wages tend downward—or at least they used to do that. Even the new "floor under wages" will not prevent that altogether, because it applies only to the lowest rate for unskilled labor. But taxes are fixed by law. The tax rate rarely goes down. In many cases, such as real estate taxes, the total tax bill does not decline even if business fades to nothing. In those cases the percentage of tax cost to total cost goes up with bad business and at an alarming rate.

Labor rates though not so rigid, through collective bargaining, unionization and minimum wage laws, tend to become more and more inflexible.

If you figure clear back to sources of raw materials, the bulk of material costs is made up of labor costs. With tax rates firmly fixed by law and rapidly increasing and labor rates tending to make inflexible other elements of cost, two results are being produced. First, the cost of everything we consume is going up. Second, that cost tends to become rigidly frozen.

If this tendency continues, the only flexible element in cost will be the profit element. But in the great mass-production industries the percentage of price that goes for profit is relatively small. Recent increases in tax and labor elements are greater than the whole profit element in the cost of times. If profits were reduced even to zero, it is doubtful whether there would be a range of flexibility of as much as 10 per cent in price—a range that on present rates of increase would be eaten up by tax and labor increases in two years.

We are headed toward price freezing on a constantly increasing schedule. Price inflexibility, especially on high levels, prevents natural economic forces from restoring prosperity in times of depression. The only way to restore a stagnant market is to lower prices to a point where people with reduced incomes can buy again. Most economic rules are doubtful and tricky. But that one isn't. Everybody stands it. That's the reason for fire sales.

The favorite danger for political heroes to kill is monopoly. Their battle slogan is that it exploits the public and prevents prosperity by high and inflexible prices. As the Brookings Institution has pointed out, there are very few industrial combinations with power to do that any more. But in the utmost of any power they ever had to do it was negligible compared with the resistless certainty of the trends here discussed.

This administration, through O'Mahoney committee, is about to stage a witch hunt—and no matter what is said, with hunt it will be to find the culprits in business who are responsible for high inflexible prices. Maybe there are some but, compared with the effect of the debt, spending and taxation policies of government itself to cause this prosperity preventing trend, they are relatively as ineffectual as children in a kindergarten.

Government has horned in at the table between capital and labor and taken for its own extravagance what soon will be a larger share than belongs to either. That extra share will be paid for by every son of Adam who eats, wears clothes and lives under a roof.

THE ABILITY TO PAY WAGE THEORY

The new wage and hour bill takes a step toward establishing wages on the ability-to-pay theory.

If the administrator of the new law decides that any particular industry has the ability to pay a minimum of forty cents an hour, he has the authority to establish the forty cent wage at once without waiting for the period of time to elapse that compels the minimum to be increased to forty cents an hour.

Now, why any industry should pay more per hour than another industry, simply because it has the ability to pay, is something that has never been explained other than that the congressmen thought it would be popular and help to re-elect them. The only reason one industry should pay more than another is that one kind of work is more difficult, or disagreeable, than another and consequently it is obliged to pay a higher wage in order to get men to leave easier, or more agreeable jobs to take the more difficult ones.

The only industry that could have more ability to pay than another industry is a new one in which the profits are large. But if it is a new industry and the product is in demand, it is to the interest of society that the profits be large so that more capital will be attracted to it and this additional capital going into it, as a result of the prospects of larger profits, will force down the selling price of the product and the customers will get the benefits of the larger profits.

On the face of it, the ability-to-pay theory of wages, or taxes, is about as detrimental to society as any theory can be. It is Socialism and Communism in a disguised form. It retards and penalizes the enterpriser who is doing most to raise the living standards of his fellow workman.

It is just another wish-picture, that wages can be raised by unions or labor laws. But instead of raising wages, it always lowers them for the workers as a whole.

If the voters have intelligence enough to select a government, or union representatives, who are wise enough to know what each line of industry should pay or each worker should receive, then these workers are certainly intelligent enough to know which kind of work they would prefer to do at a given price.

The belief that anyone knows how high wages should be is most fallacious, and has as much to do with the worst depression in our history as anything else. If no one knows, then it is absurd to attempt to establish wages by collective bargaining or by law.

Wages should be rapidly adjusted so that there is enough prospect for a profit in business at all times, so that all can work as many hours as they desire to work. The ability-to-pay wage theory prevents this rapid adjustment in wages and makes wages so arbitrary that there is great unemployment and great injustice to different classes of workers. In short, it takes away from some workers the fruits of their labor and gives it to others.

The columns of this paper are open for anyone to attempt to defend the ability to pay wage theory.

OUR PERMANENT RELIEF LOAD

Successful politicians follow about the same formula. The assertion of Harry Hopkins, chief spender of the new deal administration, that 90 per cent of reliefers favor Roosevelt is consistent with it. The formula always starts with an emotional appeal to those ideals held by the majority of men and women. Higher individual income, accompanied by shorter working hours, is one of those ideals. Jobs for everybody is another. People have flocked behind the banners of politicians promising these things without ever stopping to inquire how they are to be accomplished. Once in the saddle, their favorites tell the people from time to time of the methods proposed for reaching promised goals. Federal wage and hour legislation was one method. It was to guarantee minimum wages for certain classes of employees in industry. It was to establish short hours. It was to provide higher individual income, and limit the working time of each employee, making necessary the unemployment of more persons. Ultimately unemployment was to be ended. And soon, we may expect to hear that the only way to carry on is to elect Roosevelt for a third term.

In the most general of terms, Hopkins repeats the idea often expressed by the President:

"The income of the south needs to be raised now. One way to help raise the income of the region as a whole is to get wages into the hands of those who need to spend it."

What Hopkins spoke of was the need to increase the incomes of those residents of the south who are on relief. The only way he finds to meet the need is to take money from wage earners and employers and give it to those who earn little or nothing in private industry, pay no property tax, and employ no one. Aubrey Williams, chief deputy to Hopkins, last week referred to work relief as a permanent institution. In explanation he stated:

"Our purpose is to provide that stimulation to private production which will bring into full operation the private industrial plants that we have."

The two statements taken together seem to mean something entirely sound. Certainly productive workers form industry's best market. Williams seems to say that the new deal is going to stimulate production which would not only create more jobs, but also would place wages referred to by Hopkins into the hands of productive workers who need to spend.

But is work relief productive? Oklahoma City's councilmen last week mulled over the question in connection with local participation appropriations paid by city tax payers in the form of ad valorem levies and bond issues. "It's been a mighty expensive free ride," was the comment of Mayor Martin. Where are the jobs and wages after a federal project is completed? What is being produced as the result of relief work? What new wealth followed? What private industry was led to expand its facilities, or even to produce to the limits of present capacity? To keep relief money pouring in, the new deal has levied taxes which amount almost to penalization upon private employer and employee alike. Social security funds, held in trust by the government, have gone into the spending pot. Industry has been penalized by taxes on earnings and reserves until it cannot expand. Added overhead costs have skyrocketed prices not only to wage earning consumers, but also to recipients of relief. Faced with the necessity of raising more money, official Washington now talks of reducing individual income tax exemptions. And all the while the treasury has been marking up annual deficits. This, as it has turned out, is the procedure called "good" by the man whose job as relief administrator depends upon keeping a permanent relief load.—Oklahoma City Times.
